The previous high was a total of $624,012 in permits issued in June. The June figure was bolstered by permit for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. addition at an estimated cost of $486,487.

The November high is due to the issuance of a permit for the construction of the hospital additon to the Ray Clinton Construction Co. at an estimated price of $1,043,000.

An upswing in construction of new houses accompanied the hospital permit and reflects a welcome change in the way construction has been going.

Permits for the construction of eight new houses were issued in November, the most issued since June when nine were issued. Since June only seven were issued for new houses: three in July, two in August, two in September and none in October.

Wayne Cooper, Jackson, Tenn., was charged following an accident on West Malone.

Teresa Alberson, 803 Ruth, was issued a summons on South Kingshighway.

In other police reports, Helen Masters, route four, Sikeston, told police Friday that a black onyx ring valued at $75 was stolen from a table at the Lewis Furniture Store Wednesday. She said she had left it on a table while making a phone call, and the ring was missing when she returned.

Suspect Held by Cincinnati Police

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The sixth strangling in Cincinnati turned the spotlight today on the unsolved Aug. 14 slaying of a 31-year-old woman who was stabbed in the throat after an attempt was made to strangle her.

Police continued to question a 29-year-old man in connection with both cases, and also the five previous stranglings.

A shy, religious spinster, Lulu Kerrick, 81, became the sixth victim of a killer who has terrorized Cincinnati since Dec. 2, 1965. Her body was found Friday in an elevator of her apartment building.

"There's a definite tie-in of the Kerrick slaying with other strangulations in the city," said Jacob Schott, chief of detectives.

The stranglings have resulted in increased sales of guns and other weapons, such as tear gas guns, in the Cincinnati area.

Police arrested a laborer and former part time taxi driver, shortly after Miss Kerrick's body was found. They said he had been seen following another woman into Miss Kerrick's apartment building early Friday. That woman filed an assault charge against him.

Late Friday night, Schott said six persons picked the man out of a lineup in connection with the slaying of Barbara Bowman, 31, last Aug. 14. But the five men and a woman said they were not sure enough of the identification to testify in court.

Miss Kerrick, who lived alone a few blocks from police headquarters, was attacked after returning home from 7 a.m. Mass at St. Peter-in-Chains Cathedral near her home.

She had not been raped as were the other five strangling victims, all more than 50 years old. She was strangled with a stocking yanked from her leg.

The last previous killing was Oct. 20 when the body of Rose Winstel, 81, a spinster, was found in her apartment. She lived alone and strangled with an electric cord.

Utility Expansion Explored in Talk

City attorney Manuel Drumm has met with representatives of Missouri Utilities Company for exploratory discussion of the city's intention to enjoin the company for further expansion, Bill Bess, chairman of the board of public works said today.

Ray Call, Cape Girardeau, president of the utility company, and a company attorney met with Drumm.

"They wondered why we intend to file an injunction and we explained," Bess said.

Bess said he did not know if the city still intends to file for an injunction. It will depend on the action of the utility company, Bess said.

Drumm said today he did not care to discuss the meeting. He said that another meeting between company officials and the city is expected to be held next week.

The city council Monday night authorized the city attorney to file an injunction to stop expansion of electrical service by Missouri Utilities into areas not previously served.

Prior to the council meeting the city wrote a letter to the company asking that they remove a line constructed to serve residents in Collins first addition.

Stray Hits Kill 16 and Wound 11

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- Two 250-pound bombs dropped from a U.S. Marine Corps plane exploded in the midst of a Marine company today, killing 16 Leathernecks and wounding 11, a Marine spokesman said.

The bombs were among six dropped to support a Marine battalion advancing along a razorback ridge, known as the Rockpile, about five miles south of the demilitarized zone, he said. The other four fell on their intended targets ahead of the advancing Marines.

The spokesman said the two errant bombs may have ricochetted after striking the rocky terrain or there may have been a malfunction in the bombing mechanism.

The bombing strike was aimed at a suspected concentration of North Vietnamese troops on the ridge.

Marines won the Rockpile in campaigning through the early fall against infiltrated North Vietnamese battalions. Curtains of explosives laid down by planes and artillery helped there, as elsewhere, to hold down the losses of American ground forces. But there was a costly accidental attack in that drive too.

A 500-pound bomb fell short in a strike by four Phantom jets in a raid on enemy entrenchments across a strategic hill near the Rockpile Sept. 18. The stray bomb exploded on a group of dug - in Marines, killing three and wounding four.

In other war action, the Viet Cong mounted a series of attacks and ambushes within a 35 - mile radius of Saigon Friday night and today and in one assault inflicted heavy casualties on Vietnamese troops.

An estimated 500 - man Viet Cong force attacked two companies of Vietnamese popular force soldiers at an army train-

Squeeze Put on Britain

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — South Africa has become the key issue in the U.N. Security Council debate on Rhodesia as African leaders mount pressure for a total oil ban against the rebel Rhodesian regime.

Caught in the squeeze is Britain, which for months has resisted African demands for mandatory economic sanctions against Rhodesia, aware that it could lead to a confrontation with South Africa, her fourth biggest customer.

The Africans reacted quickly when British Foreign Minister George Brown asked the council Thursday to apply compulsory but limited economic penalties against Prime Minister Ian Smith's regime.

Brown insisted that the sanctions should affect Rhodesia alone and not harm the economy of any outside country. The Africans labeled this a move to avoid a showdown with South Africa, which carries on a $1 billion annual trade with the British.

African leaders indicated privately that they are working on amendments designed to transform Britain's "soft" resolution into a measure aimed at smashing Smith's white minority regime.

Publicly, the Africans opened an attack on Britain through Zambia, Rhodesia's next-door neighbor and a leader in the move for total sanctions.

"Let us be realistic", Zambian Foreign Minister Simon M. Kapwepwe told the council Friday. "Sanctions are not going to work without the active participation of South Africa, which Britain has chosen to protect."

Even Britain's supporters do not expect quick results from mandatory sanctions that are selected in scope, but they predict that such measures eventually will be effective.

Some delegates have expressed doubt, however, that the mandatory penalties will have any more effect than the voluntary sanctions in effect for the past year. They cite the fact that both South Africa and Portugal have served notice they will not observe them.

Brown contends that the voluntary penalties had a marked effect on Rhodesia's economy, reducing its exports by about 40 per cent below the 1965 level.

African delegates have pointed out, however, that they were not effective enough to make the Rhodesian white minority give up independence. Smith's regime declared its independence a year ago Nov. 11.

Diallo Telli, secretary of the Organization of African Unity, said in Cairo that an international military blockade should be applied against Rhodesia "from the coast of Mozambique to South Africa."

FOLLOWING ANNOUNCEMENT of an innocent verdict by the jury in the Tommy Lee Thompson murder trial at Jackson Friday, a pensive Fielding Potashnick, Scott county prosecuting attorney, denounced a United States supreme court decision which restricts law enforcement officers in taking statements from accused persons. Thompson was charged with the sniper slaying of Mrs. W. R. Lewis Feb. 1, 1965.

Thompson Charged, Returned to Benton

By Warren Sokolis

BENTON - Tommy Lee Thompson, 18, Sikeston, was returned to the Scott County jail Friday afternoon and charged with burglary and stealing.

Thompson, who was acquitted of first degree murder for the sniper shooting of Mrs. W. R. Lewis at her Sikeston home Feb. 1, 1965, was picked up by Scott county sheriff's officers at Cape Girardeau county jail, Jackson, after Fielding Potashnick, Scott county prosecuting attorney, issued a warrant.

Thompson is charged in connection with the burglary of the Daris Burgess residence, 842 Ruth, the night of Feb. 17, 1965.

Sikeston police said that four $1 bills, 1,500 pennies, a billfold, two dairy uniforms and three pairs of men's shorts were taken in the theft.

Some of the items stolen from the Burgess home were found when Thompson was arrested Feb. 20, 1965, and charged with the murder of Mrs. Lewis, Potashnick said.

Thompson will appear in magistrate court at Sikeston Tuesday for his preliminary hearing on the theft charge.

Afte the innocent verdict was announced Friday morning, Thompson showed little more emotion than he had during the rest of the trial. During the trial his face revealed no emotion. Occasional rapid blinking of his eyes was the only change of expression on his face.

When the verdict was read, Thompson showed no more emotion for several seconds. Then he smiled mildly before resuming an emotionless expression.

Thompson left the courtroom accompanied by two Cape Girardeau county sheriff deputies and was placed in custody on the burglary and stealing charges. He was then taken to the Cape county jail in Jackson to await serving of the warrant from Scott county.

At the jail Thompson maintained that he had been tried for a crime he did not commit. He seemed somewhat apprehensive that he was still being held in custody and not permitted to go free.

Potashnick strongly expressed dissatisfaction with the jury's verdict, calling it a "gross miscarriage of justice." He blasted the United States supreme court for ruling out as admissable evidence all pretrial confessions that an accused person makes before he has an attorney's counsel.

Potashnick said that Thompson's 67-page confession and re-enactment of the crime was obtained "under antiseptic conditions."

Thompson was continually advised of his constitutional rights during the questioning, the prosecuting attorney explained, and was advised of his right to have a lawyer.

However, in the Miranda decision of the supreme court, the court ruled that the accused must not only be advised of his right to have an attorney but also that such an attorney will be provided free of charge if the accused cannot afford to pay for the lawyer's fees.

Thompson had not been so advised, Potashnick said. The Miranda case ruling was made retroactive.

The confession and re-enactment of the crime was ruled out as admissable evidence by Judge W. Osler Statler Monday at a pretrial hearing.

Thompson stoutly denied the charge after his attorneys were appointed by the court. Following his preliminary hearing in

Peace Talks Pursued

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

ALGIERS (AP)—The United States asked Algeria today to use its good offices to bring about Viet Nam peace talks.

Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika immediately responded by summoning North Vietnamese Ambassador Nguyen Van Phat to an unusual Saturday afternoon meeting at the Foreign Ministry.

U.S. officials said they were agreeably surprised by the speed of the Algerian action following a 90-minute meeting between W. Averell Harriman, President Johnson's roving ambassador, and Col. Houari Boumedienne, president of Algeria's ruling Revolutionary Council.

Harriman said he asked Boumedienne to use his good offices to bring about peace talks. He made similar requests to other governments on his current tour, but Algeria is in a special position since both Hanoi and the Viet Cong maintain diplomatic missions here.

Harriman told a news conference he felt the Algerian leaders "very much want to bring about a settlement in Viet Nam and will do what they can—but they did not tell me what they intended to do."

American sources said Harriman gave his news conference unaware of Bouteflika's summons to the Hanoi ambassador.

Whatever the outcome of Bouteflika's talk with Van Phat, it was considered unlikely that Harriman would delay his departure for Madrid, scheduled for Sunday.

He said he explained the American position on Viet Nam to Boumedienne, listened to the Algerian views and "entirely disagreed" with them.

He did not indicate what kind of Algerian mediation he had in mind. He said he did not suggest an active Algerian role in negotiations.

"The idea was not precluded," he added.

The Boumedienne regime regards the Viet Nam war as a "war of national liberation" similar to Algeria's own war against French rule. The government-run press and radio hardly let a day pass without condemning American "aggression" in Viet Nam.

Harriman clearly made little headway in his efforts to gain Algerian acceptance of the American position. But he said his meeting with Boumedienne, and a four-hour meeting Friday with Foreign Minister Bouteflika, convinced him that the Algerian leaders "believed in President Johnson's sincerity."

He stressed that the diplomatic missions of North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong accredited in Algiers had made no attempt to contact him during his three-day stay. There had been widespread speculation on the possibility of secret peace feelers.

Police Checking Bill Incident

NEW MADRID -- A red haired woman attempted to change a $20 bill at the Williams Truck Stop and Restaurant on Highway 61 in Howardville Friday night, police said today.

The woman was a passenger in a car driven by a man. The service station attendant said the man paid for the gasoline after having the tank filled. Then the woman asked for change for a $20 bill.

The attendant said he thought he could change it, but when he checked he could not. The woman had followed him into the station to obtain the change. When he said he couldn't make the change, she said she would go next door to the restaurant to break the bill. She returned to the car and left without going to the restuarant, the attendant said.

Police are investigating. The attendant said he did not know if the bill was counterfeit but the woman acted suspicious.

A middle aged red haired woman passed a $20 counterfeit bill at four Sikeston liquor stores last week.

Ruby Hospitalized By Serious Illness

By TOM STUCKEY

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) Jack Ruby, slayer of Lee Harvey Oswald and but a month or so away from a new trial, remained in serious condition at Parkland Hospital today. He was first diagnosed as having pneumonia but hospital authorities said tests were being made for other possible ailments.

Ruby was transferred to the hospital Friday afternoon from the Dallas County jail, where he has been held since the Nov. 24, 1963, slaying of Oswald.

A midmorning statement today by hospital authorities said that Ruby had spent a comfortable night and is slightly improved but remains in serious condition.

The statement said part of the fluid that had built up in his right lung had been removed and that he is receiving oxygen and antibacterial agents. Detailed tests and studies are being made but the results are not expected to be announced before Monday afternoon.

Phil Burleson, one of Ruby's lawyers, said it was "too early to tell" how the illness might affect a new trial for his client.

Ruby, 55, was convicted and sentenced to death for Oswald's slaying, but the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals recently reversed the 1964 conviction and ordered a new trial outside of Dallas.

Dist. Judge Louis Holland, who has presided over the case since trial Judge Joe B. Brown bowed out, transferred the trial to Wichita Falls but set no date. He indicated it possibly would be in February.

Burleson saw Ruby soon after he arrived at the hospital and described him as a very sick man.

"We are concerned," said the lawyer. "I think he's very sick."

Burleson said Ruby was being administered oxygen.

"The guy's dying," said Ruby's sister, Eva Grant.

A jail doctor said Ruby had a "throat tickling kind of cough" but at 10 a.m. Friday there was no fever.

Sheriff Bill Decker said he ordered Ruby to the hospital after talking to Ruby for the first time in about 10 days and conferring with Dr. J.M. Pickard, county health officer.

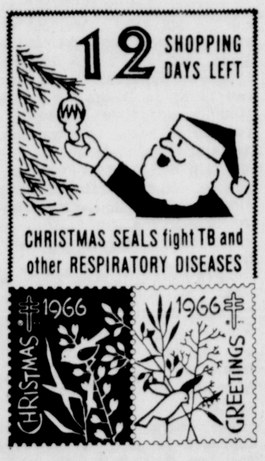

An assistant to Pickard, Dr. J.W. Callahan, said he had been treating Ruby for a cold about two weeks.

"His cold seemed to be subsiding," said Callahan. "I thought he was improving. I was surprised to hear that he had gone to the hospital."

Mrs. Grant said she saw her brother Friday and he "looked terrible — like a corpse."

Judge Orders Unrult Pair Bound, Gagged

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The judge ordered two hardened convicts gagged and bound in straitjackets before letting their trial continue. A third convict threatened to kill him.

When the five-week trial in Allegheny County criminal court ended Friday night with the conviction of the trio for attempted prison break, one defendant called the judge a "creep."

The three Western State Penitentiary inmates — Richard Mayberry, 28; Dominic Codispodi, 34, and Herbert F. Lagnes, 27 — acted as their own attorneys. Sentencing was set for Monday.

As Judge Albert A. Fiok began charging the jury, Mayberry and Codispodi threw the courtroom into an uproar by shouting at the jury and drowning out the judge.

Fiok called a recess and ordered the pair removed. Twenty minutes later deputies marched them into the courtroom. The two prisoners were bound in heavy canvas straitjackets and their mouths were taped shut.

Lagnes, still unbound, shook a fist at the judge and screamed:

"I swear on my mother's name, I'll keep my threats to you. You understand that, you punk. I'll shake hands with you in hell. You're a dead man." He added a respectful, "your honor."

Last week Lagnes told Fiok: "If I can't get my rights legally, I'll get them illegally. If I have to blow your head off, that's what I'll do."

While Lagnes made his new threat, Mayberry and Codispodi mumbled loudly through their gags. The situation completely out of control, Fiok called another recess.

Because the accused must be present to hear the charge, the judge ordered them into an anteroom and broadcast the charge by loudspeaker.

Each man was charged with holding two prison guards hostage while attempting to escape with zip guns and prison-made bombs from Western State June 27, 1965.

In his charge, Fiok called the trio's conduct "utterly horrendous. But he admonished the jurors to "lock out of your minds the distasteful display by the defendants."

It took the jury nearly six hours to reach a verdict. As Fiok thanked the jurors for their time and effort, Mayberry screamed:

"Why don't you shut your mouth and get on with the business at hand, you creep." Twenty deputies surrounded him, and the judge continued his remarks.

Guaranteed Income for Everyone Debated

Washington (AP)—A proposal for the government to guarantee an income for everyone, regardless of whether he works, was debated Friday before a U. S. Chamber of Commerce group in advance of its presentation to Congress.

How much would it cost? That was a question that reverberated through the audience of about 215 businessmen who attended the five-hour discussion.

James Tobin, Yale University economics professor and the champion of one guaranteed-income plan, estimated the price tag might be as much as $25 billion.

He said such a program might replace some other public outlays for housing and medical care and eliminate most of the present federal, state and public assistance expenditures costing around $5 billion.

Robert Theobald, a British socio-economist who advocates a guaranteed income, told the businessmen the cost shouldn't be reckoned in dollars. He said in the long run it would cost less than present welfare programs.

He also said present welfare programs are inadequate and fail to meet the needs of those who need aid the most, among whom he said are the unemployed, young male negroes.

Chamber of Commerce spokesmen said the organization has not defined its policy on the guaranteed annual salary but wants to get the thinking of those interested in poverty problems.

The discussion centered on Theobald's proposal that everyone should have a guaranteed annual salary with no strings attached and allowed to seek his own field of endeavor. He wouldn't have to work unless he wanted to.

Henry Hazlitt, columnist for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate, said such a program is an absolutely immoral proposition . Besides, he said, the cost would be enormous.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., explained his plan to guarantee everyone equal opportunity. He would do this by building more efficiency and precision into welfare programs, updating education so everyone has an equal chance at schooling and providing re-education and rehabilitation for those whose jobs are eliminated by automation.

A proposal similar to Tobin's was offered by Milton Friedman, economics professor at the University of Chicago. These plans are called "negative income tax."

If a family made less than a stated amount, or had no income at all, it would be entitled to payment from the government. One minimum mentioned was $2,500 per family. If there was some income, the government still would pay a graduated amount up to a break even point.

On one table of payments, a 500 a year. Over $7,500, the family would pay income tax and wouldn't receive supplements.

One one table of payments, a family with $4,500 income would receive $1,000 supplemental payment for a total income of $5,500.

Theobald said the significant fact about the meeting is that the Chamber of Commerce considers the guaranteed annual salary of sufficient importance to assemble such a distinguished group to discuss it.

He said that there will be legislation before Congress.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The sixth strangling in Cincinnati turned the spotlight today on the unsolved Aug. 14 slaying of a 31-year-old woman who was stabbed in the throat after an attempt was made to strangle her.

Police continued to question a 29-year-old man in connection with both cases, and also the five previous stranglings.

A shy, religious spinster, Lulu Kerrick, 81, became the sixth victim of a killer who has terrorized Cincinnati since Dec. 2, 1965. Her body was found Friday in an elevator of her apartment building.

"There's a definite tie-in of the Kerrick slaying with other strangulations in the city," said Jacob Schott, chief of detectives.

The stranglings have resulted in increased sales of guns and other weapons, such as tear gas guns, in the Cincinnati area.

Police arrested a laborer and former part time taxi driver, shortly after Miss Kerrick's body was found. They said he had been seen following another woman into Miss Kerrick's apartment building early Friday. That woman filed an assault charge against him.

Late Friday night, Schott said six persons picked the man out of a lineup in connection with the slaying of Barbara Bowman, 31, last Aug. 14. But the five men and a woman said they were not sure enough of the identification to testify in court.

Miss Kerrick, who lived alone a few blocks from police headquarters, was attacked after returning home from 7 a.m. Mass at St. Peter-in-Chains Cathedral near her home.

She had not been raped as were the other five strangling victims, all more than 50 years old. She was strangled with a stocking yanked from her leg.

The last previous killing was Oct. 20 when the body of Rose Winstel, 81, a spinster, was found in her apartment. She lived alone and strangled with an electric cord.

Utility Expansion Explored in Talk

City attorney Manuel Drumm has met with representatives of Missouri Utilities Company for exploratory discussion of the city's intention to enjoin the company for further expansion, Bill Bess, chairman of the board of public works said today.

Ray Call, Cape Girardeau, president of the utility company, and a company attorney met with Drumm.

"They wondered why we intend to file an injunction and we explained," Bess said.

Bess said he did not know if the city still intends to file for an injunction. It will depend on the action of the utility company, Bess said.

Drumm said today he did not care to discuss the meeting. He said that another meeting between company officials and the city is expected to be held next week.

The city council Monday night authorized the city attorney to file an injunction to stop expansion of electrical service by Missouri Utilities into areas not previously served.

Prior to the council meeting the city wrote a letter to the company asking that they remove a line constructed to serve residents in Collins first addition.

Snow May Fall in City

Sunday will be cold with below freezing readings expected throughout the day.

Monday will be sunny and warmer.

Police Checking Bill Incident

NEW MADRID -- A red haired woman attempted to change a $20 bill at the Williams Truck Stop and Restaurant on Highway 61 in Howardville Friday night, police said today.

The woman was a passenger in a car driven by a man. The service station attendant said the man paid for the gasoline after having the tank filled. Then the woman asked for change for a $20 bill.

The attendant said he thought he could change it, but when he checked he could not. The woman had followed him into the station to obtain the change. When he said he couldn't make the change, she said she would go next door to the restaurant to break the bill.

She returned to the car and left without going to the restuarant, the attendant said.

Police are investigating. The attendant said he did not know if the bill was counterfeit but the woman acted suspicious.

A middle aged red haired woman passed a $20 counterfeit bill at four Sikeston liquor stores last week.

Stray Hits Kill 16 and Wound 11

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- Two 250-pound bombs dropped from a U.S. Marine Corps plane exploded in the midst of a Marine company today, killing 16 Leathernecks and wounding 11, a Marine spokesman said.

The bombs were among six dropped to support a Marine battalion advancing along a razorback ridge, known as the Rockpile, about five miles south of the demilitarized zone, he said. The other four fell on their intended targets ahead of the advancing Marines.

The spokesman said the two errant bombs may have ricochetted after striking the rocky terrain or there may have been a malfunction in the bombing mechanism.

The bombing strike was aimed at a suspected concentration of North Vietnamese troops on the ridge.

Marines won the Rockpile in campaigning through the early fall against infiltrated North Vietnamese battalions. Curtains of explosives laid down by planes and artillery helped there, as elsewhere, to hold down the losses of American ground forces. But there was a costly accidental attack in that drive too.

A 500-pound bomb fell short in a strike by four Phantom jets in a raid on enemy entrenchments across a strategic hill near the Rockpile Sept. 18. The stray bomb exploded on a group of dug - in Marines, killing three and wounding four.

In other war action, the Viet Cong mounted a series of attacks and ambushes within a 35 - mile radius of Saigon Friday night and today and in one assault inflicted heavy casualties on Vietnamese troops.

An estimated 500 - man Viet Cong force attacked two companies of Vietnamese popular force soldiers at an army train-

Ruby Hospitalized By Serious Illness

By TOM STUCKEY

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) Jack Ruby, slayer of Lee Harvey Oswald and but a month or so away from a new trial, remained in serious condition at Parkland Hospital today. He was first diagnosed as having pneumonia but hospital authorities said tests were being made for other possible ailments.

Ruby was transferred to the hospital Friday afternoon from the Dallas County jail, where he has been held since the Nov. 24, 1963, slaying of Oswald.

A midmorning statement today by hospital authorities said that Ruby had spent a comfortable night and is slightly improved but remains in serious condition.

The statement said part of the fluid that had built up in his right lung had been removed and that he is receiving oxygen and antibacterial agents. Detailed tests and studies are being made but the results are not expected to be announced before Monday afternoon.

Phil Burleson, one of Ruby's lawyers, said it was "too early to tell" how the illness might affect a new trial for his client.

Ruby, 55, was convicted and sentenced to death for Oswald's slaying, but the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals recently reversed the 1964 conviction and ordered a new trial outside of Dallas.

Dist. Judge Louis Holland, who has presided over the case since trial Judge Joe B. Brown bowed out, transferred the trial to Wichita Falls but set no date. He indicated it possibly would be in February.

Burleson saw Ruby soon after he arrived at the hospital and described him as a very sick man.

"We are concerned," said the lawyer. "I think he's very sick."

Burleson said Ruby was being administered oxygen.

"The guy's dying," said Ruby's sister, Eva Grant.

A jail doctor said Ruby had a "throat tickling kind of cough" but at 10 a.m. Friday there was no fever.

Sheriff Bill Decker said he ordered Ruby to the hospital after talking to Ruby for the first time in about 10 days and conferring with Dr. J.M. Pickard, county health officer.

An assistant to Pickard, Dr. J.W. Callahan, said he had been treating Ruby for a cold about two weeks.

"His cold seemed to be subsiding," said Callahan. "I thought he was improving. I was surprised to hear that he had gone to the hospital."

Mrs. Grant said she saw her brother Friday and he "looked terrible — like a corpse."

Squeeze Put on Britain

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — South Africa has become the key issue in the U.N. Security Council debate on Rhodesia as African leaders mount pressure for a total oil ban against the rebel Rhodesian regime.

Caught in the squeeze is Britain, which for months has resisted African demands for mandatory economic sanctions against Rhodesia, aware that it could lead to a confrontation with South Africa, her fourth biggest customer.

The Africans reacted quickly when British Foreign Minister George Brown asked the council Thursday to apply compulsory but limited economic penalties against Prime Minister Ian Smith's regime.

Brown insisted that the sanctions should affect Rhodesia alone and not harm the economy of any outside country. The Africans labeled this a move to avoid a showdown with South Africa, which carries on a $1 billion annual trade with the British.

African leaders indicated privately that they are working on amendments designed to transform Britain's "soft" resolution into a measure aimed at smashing Smith's white minority regime.

Publicly, the Africans opened an attack on Britain through Zambia, Rhodesia's next-door neighbor and a leader in the move for total sanctions.

"Let us be realistic", Zambian Foreign Minister Simon M. Kapwepwe told the council Friday. "Sanctions are not going to work without the active participation of South Africa, which Britain has chosen to protect."

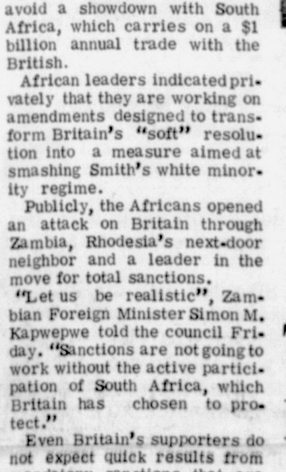

Even Britain's supporters do not expect quick results from mandatory sanctions that are selected in scope, but they predict that such measures eventually will be effective.

Some delegates have expressed doubt, however, that the mandatory penalties will have any more effect than the voluntary sanctions in effect for the past year. They cite the fact that both South Africa and Portugal have served notice they will not observe them.

Brown contends that the voluntary penalties had a marked effect on Rhodesia's economy, reducing its exports by about 40 per cent below the 1965 level.

African delegates have pointed out, however, that they were not effective enough to make the Rhodesian white minority give up independence. Smith's regime declared its independence a year ago Nov. 11.

Diallo Telli, secretary of the Organization of African Unity, said in Cairo that an international military blockade should be applied against Rhodesia "from the coast of Mozambique to South Africa."

FOLLOWING ANNOUNCEMENT of an innocent verdict by the jury in the Tommy Lee Thompson murder trial at Jackson Friday, a pensive Fielding Potashnick, Scott county prosecuting attorney, denounced a United States supreme court decision which restricts law enforcement officers in taking statements from accused persons. Thompson was charged with the sniper slaying of Mrs. W. R. Lewis Feb. 1, 1965.

Thompson Charged, Returned to Benton

By Warren Sokolis

BENTON - Tommy Lee Thompson, 18, Sikeston, was returned to the Scott County jail Friday afternoon and charged with burglary and stealing.

Thompson, who was acquitted of first degree murder for the sniper shooting of Mrs. W. R. Lewis at her Sikeston home Feb. 1, 1965, was picked up by Scott county sheriff's officers at Cape Girardeau county jail, Jackson, after Fielding Potashnick, Scott county prosecuting attorney, issued a warrant.

Thompson is charged in connection with the burglary of the Daris Burgess residence, 842 Ruth, the night of Feb. 17, 1965.

Sikeston police said that four $1 bills, 1,500 pennies, a billfold, two dairy uniforms and three pairs of men's shorts were taken in the theft.

Some of the items stolen from the Burgess home were found when Thompson was arrested Feb. 20, 1965, and charged with the murder of Mrs. Lewis, Potashnick said.

Thompson will appear in magistrate court at Sikeston Tuesday for his preliminary hearing on the theft charge.

Afte the innocent verdict was announced Friday morning, Thompson showed little more emotion than he had during the rest of the trial. During the trial his face revealed no emotion. Occasional rapid blinking of his eyes was the only change of expression on his face.

When the verdict was read, Thompson showed no more emotion for several seconds. Then he smiled mildly before resuming an emotionless expression.

Thompson left the courtroom accompanied by two Cape Girardeau county sheriff deputies and was placed in custody on the burglary and stealing charges. He was then taken to the Cape county jail in Jackson to await serving of the warrant from Scott county.

At the jail Thompson maintained that he had been tried for a crime he did not commit. He seemed somewhat apprehensive that he was still being held in custody and not permitted to go free.

Potashnick strongly expressed dissatisfaction with the jury's verdict, calling it a "gross miscarriage of justice." He blasted the United States supreme court for ruling out as admissable evidence all pretrial confessions that an accused person makes before he has an attorney's counsel.

Potashnick said that Thompson's 67-page confession and re-enactment of the crime was obtained "under antiseptic conditions."

Thompson was continually advised of his constitutional rights during the questioning, the prosecuting attorney explained, and was advised of his right to have a lawyer.

However, in the Miranda decision of the supreme court, the court ruled that the accused must not only be advised of his right to have an attorney but also that such an attorney will be provided free of charge if the accused cannot afford to pay for the lawyer's fees.

Thompson had not been so advised, Potashnick said. The Miranda case ruling was made retroactive.

The confession and re-enactment of the crime was ruled out as admissable evidence by Judge W. Osler Statler Monday at a pretrial hearing.

Thompson stoutly denied the charge after his attorneys were appointed by the court. Following his preliminary hearing in

Peace Talks Pursued

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

ALGIERS (AP)—The United States asked Algeria today to use its good offices to bring about Viet Nam peace talks.

Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika immediately responded by summoning North Vietnamese Ambassador Nguyen Van Phat to an unusual Saturday afternoon meeting at the Foreign Ministry.

U.S. officials said they were agreeably surprised by the speed of the Algerian action following a 90-minute meeting between W. Averell Harriman, President Johnson's roving ambassador, and Col. Houari Boumedienne, president of Algeria's ruling Revolutionary Council.

Harriman said he asked Boumedienne to use his good offices to bring about peace talks. He made similar requests to other governments on his current tour, but Algeria is in a special position since both Hanoi and the Viet Cong maintain diplomatic missions here.

Harriman told a news conference he felt the Algerian leaders "very much want to bring about a settlement in Viet Nam and will do what they can—but they did not tell me what they intended to do."

American sources said Harriman gave his news conference unaware of Bouteflika's summons to the Hanoi ambassador.

Whatever the outcome of Bouteflika's talk with Van Phat, it was considered unlikely that Harriman would delay his departure for Madrid, scheduled for Sunday.

He said he explained the American position on Viet Nam to Boumedienne, listened to the Algerian views and "entirely disagreed" with them.

He did not indicate what kind of Algerian mediation he had in mind. He said he did not suggest an active Algerian role in negotiations.

"The idea was not precluded," he added.

The Boumedienne regime regards the Viet Nam war as a "war of national liberation" similar to Algeria's own war against French rule. The government-run press and radio hardly let a day pass without condemning American "aggression" in Viet Nam.

Harriman clearly made little headway in his efforts to gain Algerian acceptance of the American position. But he said his meeting with Boumedienne, and a four-hour meeting Friday with Foreign Minister Bouteflika, convinced him that the Algerian leaders "believed in President Johnson's sincerity."

He stressed that the diplomatic missions of North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong accredited in Algiers had made no attempt to contact him during his three-day stay. There had been widespread speculation on the possibility of secret peace feelers.

Judge Orders Unrult Pair Bound, Gagged

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The judge ordered two hardened convicts gagged and bound in straitjackets before letting their trial continue. A third convict threatened to kill him.

When the five-week trial in Allegheny County criminal court ended Friday night with the conviction of the trio for attempted prison break, one defendant called the judge a "creep."

The three Western State Penitentiary inmates — Richard Mayberry, 28; Dominic Codispodi, 34, and Herbert F. Lagnes, 27 — acted as their own attorneys. Sentencing was set for Monday.

As Judge Albert A. Fiok began charging the jury, Mayberry and Codispodi threw the courtroom into an uproar by shouting at the jury and drowning out the judge.

Fiok called a recess and ordered the pair removed. Twenty minutes later deputies marched them into the courtroom. The two prisoners were bound in heavy canvas straitjackets and their mouths were taped shut.

Lagnes, still unbound, shook a fist at the judge and screamed:

"I swear on my mother's name, I'll keep my threats to you. You understand that, you punk. I'll shake hands with you in hell. You're a dead man." He added a respectful, "your honor."

Last week Lagnes told Fiok: "If I can't get my rights legally, I'll get them illegally. If I have to blow your head off, that's what I'll do."

While Lagnes made his new threat, Mayberry and Codispodi mumbled loudly through their gags. The situation completely out of control, Fiok called another recess.

Because the accused must be present to hear the charge, the judge ordered them into an anteroom and broadcast the charge by loudspeaker.

Each man was charged with holding two prison guards hostage while attempting to escape with zip guns and prison-made bombs from Western State June 27, 1965.

In his charge, Fiok called the trio's conduct "utterly horrendous. But he admonished the jurors to "lock out of your minds the distasteful display by the defendants."

It took the jury nearly six hours to reach a verdict. As Fiok thanked the jurors for their time and effort, Mayberry screamed:

"Why don't you shut your mouth and get on with the business at hand, you creep." Twenty deputies surrounded him, and the judge continued his remarks.

Guaranteed Income for Enveryone Debated

Washington (AP)—A proposal for the government to guarantee an income for everyone, regardless of whether he works, was debated Friday before a U. S. Chamber of Commerce group in advance of its presentation to Congress.

How much would it cost? That was a question that reverberated through the audience of about 215 businessmen who attended the five-hour discussion.

James Tobin, Yale University economics professor and the champion of one guaranteed-income plan, estimated the price tag might be as much as $25 billion.

He said such a program might replace some other public outlays for housing and medical care and eliminate most of the present federal, state and public assistance expenditures costing around $5 billion.

Robert Theobald, a British socio-economist who advocates a guaranteed income, told the businessmen the cost shouldn't be reckoned in dollars. He said in the long run it would cost less than present welfare programs.

He also said present welfare programs are inadequate and fail to meet the needs of those who need aid the most, among whom he said are the unemployed, young male negroes.

Chamber of Commerce spokesmen said the organization has not defined its policy on the guaranteed annual salary but wants to get the thinking of those interested in poverty problems.

The discussion centered on Theobald's proposal that everyone should have a guaranteed annual salary with no strings attached and allowed to seek his own field of endeavor. He wouldn't have to work unless he wanted to.

Henry Hazlitt, columnist for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate, said such a program is an absolutely immoral proposition . Besides, he said, the cost would be enormous.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., explained his plan to guarantee everyone equal opportunity. He would do this by building more efficiency and precision into welfare programs, updating education so everyone has an equal chance at schooling and providing re-education and rehabilitation for those whose jobs are eliminated by automation.

A proposal similar to Tobin's was offered by Milton Friedman, economics professor at the University of Chicago. These plans are called "negative income tax."

If a family made less than a stated amount, or had no income at all, it would be entitled to payment from the government. One minimum mentioned was $2,500 per family. If there was some income, the government still would pay a graduated amount up to a break even point.

On one table of payments, a 500 a year. Over $7,500, the family would pay income tax and wouldn't receive supplements.

One one table of payments, a family with $4,500 income would receive $1,000 supplemental payment for a total income of $5,500.

Theobald said the significant fact about the meeting is that the Chamber of Commerce considers the guaranteed annual salary of sufficient importance to assemble such a distinguished group to discuss it.

He said that there will be legislation before Congress.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
HAPPINESS IS A REPEAT OF "A CHARLIE BROWN CHRISTMAS"

There's a Charlie Brown way of pitching the ever-popular high, hanging curve ball that guarantees failure.

There's a Charlie Brown Halloween trick-or-treat technique that attracts rocks instead of candy.

And then there's "A Charlie Brown Christmas" philosophy that wins awards and that is rapidly making good ol' Charlie Brown the ingenuous spokesman for those who seek the true spirit of the holiday.

The animated color cartoon special that marked the television debut of Charlie Brown and the other "Peanuts" characters from the popular Charles M. Schulz syndicated comic strip last season will be rebroadcast Sunday, Dec. 11 (7:00-7:30 p.m., EST) on the CBS Television Network.

After its premiere last December "A Charlie Brown Christmas" won a George Foster Peabody Award in the children's program category and won an Emmy as the outstanding children's feature from members of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

Written by Schulz, with a special musical score composed and performed by Vince Guaraldi, the story tells of Charlie Brown's search for the real meaning of Christmas.

Amid the sound of pre-Christmas, jingle bells, he hears some false notes - the jangle of cash registers, the cacaphony of greed and selfishness. When Charlie Brown's beagle buddy, Snoopy, enters a home-decorating contest for a monetary prize, he rebels. Surely, Charlie Brown persists, there's more to Christmas than this. Somewhere, there's a deeper meaning to it all, and he sets out to find it.

He pays a visit to Lucy Van Pelt, the self-styled child psychologist, who prescribes "involvement" in holiday activities as a panacea for Charlie Brown's worries. He becomes a director of the neighborhood Christmas pageant, but the result of this brave foray into creative drama is a typical Charlie Brown record - instant failure.

It is Linus, the little blanket-toting philosopher, who finally sets things right for Charlie, Snoopy and all the Peanuts people.

"A Charlie Brown Christmas" is a Lee-Mendelson-Bill Melendez production, in cooperation with United Feature Syndicate. Mendelson is executive producer; Melendes is director of animation.

The Peabody Award citation paid high tribute to the special holiday production. It reads, in part: "It was a little gem of a show that faithfully and sensitively introduced to television the 'Peanuts' collection of newspaper characters created by Charles M. Schulz. 'A Charlie Brown Christmas' was a delight for the whole family."

The voice of Charlie Brown is interpreted by Peter Robbins, Christopher Shea is heard as Linus and Tracy Stratford as Lucy.

There never was any doubt that Tommy Lee Thompson, Negro youth accused of the brutal and sadistic slaying of Mrs. W. R. Lewis last year, would go free.

A United States supreme court ruling strikes close to home in this trial. The supreme court made a mockery of the whole proceeding.

The question of determining the attitudes of prospective jurors about capital punishment was a sheer waste of time. So was the trial. It might as well have never been held.

Why? Because the supreme court has gone overboard in protecting individual rights at the expense of the rights of society.

It was not possible to obtain a conviction of Thompson because of the failure to use one word in advising him of his rights at the time of his arrest.

Fielding Potashnick, prosecuting attorney, says that the Negro youth was advised that anything he said might be held against him and that he had the right to obtain the services of an attorney.

Because he wasn't told that the attorney services were "free" a statement obtained from him was ruled to be inadmissable at Thompson's trial in Jackson, where a jury acquitted him after overnight deliberation.

This is no time for mob action protesting the effect of the supreme court's ruling. This would solve nothing.

The court is protected from public sentiment.

A right the people do have is to elect congressmen, and senators, who are pledged to enact legislation wherever possible nullifying the numerous court excursions into the legislative field.

In the past Congress has been sympathetic with the court but there was some evidence in the recent election that people are becoming disturbed about maintaining a status quo, which nourishes criminals, riots in the street and racial excesses.

The people cannot touch the court directly but they do elect the President and the members of Congress and the court has a reputation for following the election returns.

If the people speak loudly enough the court will listen.

If the people elect the right congressmen and senators, the Congress will act.

If they elect the right President and they make their wishes known he will be careful instead of careless in making appointments to the court.

There is no cause for despair if people will meet their responsibilities as citizens while there still is time.

IT TICKLES US

Tuxedoes are being dusted off again with the arrival of the holiday party season in Sikeston.

And in the process a Sikeston man discovered in his tux coat's handkerchief pocket "souvenirs" from one of last season's parties - silverware. Fortunately he was able to decipher the initials and returned the table service in time for this year's party, although he isn't sure he will be invited.

Which reminded us of a Sikeston man who was on a trip with his wife and a friend who was the hostess at a party they attended several days earlier. As they were walking along a Sikeston street, the man pulled a handkerchief from his pocket. Before he was able to use it, the friend grabbed it out of his hand.

The "handkerchief" turned out to be a napkin the hostess had been missing since the party.

"TIPPED WITH GOOD CHEER"

SOMEBODY said of his special friend, "He's tipped with good cheer." Surely such a phrase, wherever we wend, we love and revere. Eyes look their brightest, all of us know, when tipped with good cheer, shedding a radiant sparkle and flow on all who draw near.

Isn't it pleasant to clasp someone's hand, tipped with good cheer? A handshake that says, "I understand, life sometimes is drear." Dickens still lives because of his pen tipped with good cheer, bringing a tonic to thousands, far and wide, year by year.

Oh! for a tongue, when skies are dull gray, tipped with good cheer, making our troubles fly swiftly away, and slaying grim fear. May all of us know the gift of a friend tipped with good cheer, for that is the voice, wherever we wend, we love most to hear.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION

While bigwigs from elsewhere are trying to find explanations for the riots in Los Angeles, with which to cover up some of the obvious reasons, a lot of work-a-day citizens throughout the country are considering practical steps to prevent similar happenings in their own communities. One idea which is already beyond the talking stage in several communities is the organization of a volunteer citizens group to support the local police in times of emergency.

"Support" in this case means far more than buying a ticket to the Policeman's Ball or waving a cheery greeting to a passing patrolmen. The proposals call for advance volunteers screened for acceptability by duly elected or appointed law enforcement officials. In addition to having to meet reasonable standards of physical condition and demonstrate emotional stability on a par with requirements for regular officers, a volunteer would have to give of his time for training, probably supply most of his own equipment for training and for protection and identification if called upon to assist the police, and accept the same discipline as a regular law enforcement officer while serving with him.

This makes a lot of sense to us. It is evident in demands of certain leaders of the so-called "civil rights" movement, and in events during and after the Los Angeles riots, that one of the objectives of those who encourage and incite mass lawlessness of that sort is to bring about a breakdown of local law enforcement capability and compel the bringing in of State or Federal troops. Advance organization and training of a volunteer auxiliary might enable the decent, law-abiding residents to better assist the police in curbing destructiveness than they were able to do in the Watts community.

No doubt there will be considerable opposition to the idea of a volunteer police auxiliary. There are those, for example, who seem to think that the answer to this and all other problems is to bring in the "federals", despite the fact that most Federal law officers are no more anxious to take over the job of local enforcement than the local authorities are to have them do so. Then there are those ever-present tax-supported social workers bent on making society satisfactory to the hoodlums, with such things as special commissions and "civilian" review boards. Well, most policemen we've known are just as civil as any other citizens in the community, and more so than some. Instead of a bunch of watery-eyed social workers looking over their shoulders, we think our local police force deserves a body of backboned friends and neighbors ready on a moment's notice to stand shoulder to shoulder with them.

NUTRITIONAL RULES FOR LONGEVITY

If you wish to live to be 100, you have to start with eating, the Catholic Digest states.

Most persons who live to be 100 are lean, wiry, underweight. Doctors say the important nutritional rules are these:

1. Do not overeat. Remember that automation and new techniques require less and less energy for most jobs.

2. Eat well-balanced, reasonably adequate meals, including fresh fruit, vegetables, dairy products. Do not worry about blood cholesterol unless it is abnormally high. Baylor University scientists recently discovered that 78% of 1,700 people tested had cholesterol levels within the normal range.

3. When tired, irritated, or nervous, eat sparingly.

4. Eat at regular times. Chew food thoroughly and slowly. Avoid agitation and aggravation, particularly at mealtime. Eating should be a period of pleasant relaxation.

Other key rules: Keep blood pressure, which is directly related weight, at a normal level. Learn to live with life as it is and adjust with a sense of humor to problems, goals, and capabilities. Stress shortens life, brings on ulcers, headaches, skin afflictions, anxiety complexes, and heart attacks.

Most animals live five or six times the length of time it takes them to grow to full maturity. Man matures in about 25 years. He should live to be at least 100, more naturally to 125 or even 150. Proper diet should be augmented with daily exercise, if only walking. Physical stimulation makes all parts of the body function better.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor's Own Ethical Practices "Police Committee' Unstirred by Killings and Looting Inside Unions.

Washington, D. C.: -- Across the land, one of America's key unions, operating right in the gut of the nation's $60 billion construction industry, is infested with murder, suicide, bribery, corruption, embezzlement. Also, failure to file proper reports to the Labor Dept., making false entry into union books and, in one area, looting of pension funds. I refer here to the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America.

At least one of its officials has been indicted on charges of murder and conspiracy in the slaying of two opposition officials in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Monies involved total almost a million dollars.

The cost of the U. S. Dept. of Justice has been high as investigations breed investigations. Teams of FBI agents have been and are busy poring over the union's books in at least six states.

Yet the national AFL-CIO's Ethical Practices Committee, made up of honorable men, led by the very honorable elder statesman George Harrison, does not appear one bit concerned.

In fact, the five - man committee, though constitutionally charged with guarding the huge labor federation from the "taint" of corruption, has not even met in years. It is dead benefit of fanfare or requiem.

Nor did the recent AFL-CIO Executive Council session call on it to bestir itself though a high painters official, the brawny, tough 45-year- old Ben Rasnick, then executive secretary of the Brotherhood's San Francisco Bay Area District Council No. 16, was indicted on charges of murder and conspiracy in the shotgun killings of two regional officials. Rasnick was indicted for murder on Sept. 26. The Council met on Nov. 14.

The Ethical Practices Committee chairman and its members, lacking a staff, were not even aware that another former high official, Martin Rarback, had been placed back on his New York District Council 9 payroll, though he is under indictment on charges of having taken $840,000 in bribes. The gentlemen of the Ethical Practices Committee did not know of this appointment, even after it appeared in the public prints.

Had they probed behind the few scattered news stories, the Committee members would have learned that Rarback, the suspended secretary-treasurer of District Council 9 of the Painters Brotherhood, was not only named organizing co-ordinator, but educational director as well.

Now he is in the process of calling meetings of local memberships to educate them in modern trade unionism--presumably on how to succeed without trying in this business. There also are collections planned for contributors who can afford to give between $500 and $2000 apiece for the defense of this proletarian educator. The poor chap has at least three high-priced lawyers.

However, the San Francisco - New York axis of the Brotherhood of Painters, spectacular though it is at either end, hardly is the full measure of what should be concerning the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee. There have been indictments, convictions and corruption in other cities for almost two decades.

Some of it has been right in the capital here where labor peace in the industry once was sold for cash. In Baltimore, one local union financial secretary-treasurer was indicted on two counts -- embezzlement and failure to file reports.

Over in Charleston, W. Va., a former financial secretary and business agent was indicted on eight counts -- some of them for alleged embezzlement and false entries in union records. Also failure to file reports.

And to pick another city, there is Omaha, where a former local president and business agent was indicted on two counts--embezzlement and making false entries in union records.

For years now this perversion of union trust has been fought by rank and file groups who oftentimes exhibit more courage than discretion. Crusades always once with built-in casualties.

But this has not frightened off the west coast band, which now seeks to ally itself with its eastern brethren. Nor the New York Labor Committee Against Corruption. In The Painting Industry. Or the Washington (D. C.) Painters Clean Up Club.

They're determined to raise an alarm across country. They now know that a man's split blood in one part of the land is not always news in another sector -- especially during the World Series and college football season. There are so many diversions.

It is inevitable that the highly placed honorable men of labor angrily will say their movement is being put upon with unfair charges.

But men are dead. Pension funds have been looted. Union funds have been pillaged. The honorable gentlemen will have no one but themselves to blame if anyone else gets hurt and the labor movement's image tarnishes.

The movement can ill afford such tarnishing just as it launches something such as the Council of AFL-CIO Unions for Professional, Scientific and Cultural Employes. Its leader, bantam Charlie Cogan, teachers' federation president, said that he was eager to erase the "stigma" of a professional belonging to a union.

In some areas that will take considerable erasing. For in some areas that stigma is etched in blood.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

THE VALUE JUDGMENTS

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
"This is lousy!"

IN AN essay published this fall by Antioch College a professor of literature, M. A. Goldberg, asks whether American colleges have not betrayed their students by their reluctance to make value judgments.

"The crisis in education," says Professor Goldberg, "has been brought about by anarchy. Education teaches self-discipline, while anarchy teaches self - indulgence. Education teaches us to harness the worst elements within; anarchy to unleash everything within. Education is creative; anarchy is destructive. It is somewhat ironic that anarchy is beginning to reign supreme, in the name of education."

Coming from a school famous for raising beards and spawning demonstrations this observation is intriguing, for Antioch can hardly be described as a hotbed of conservatism.

AS A student of literature, Professor Goldberg is dismayed at dictionaries, handbooks and teachers preaching that whatever is right as far as grammar, punctuation or content are concerned. He mourns that the poetry of Shakespeare and Milton is being drowned in the gamey fulminations of Allen Ginsberg.

"Now," says Professor Goldberg, "a 'liberal' education would seemingly liberate us to do only what we like. Under the guise of education it would 'liberate' all our stupidities and all our egocentricities. Indeed, it would make our better parts prisoners of our worse --under the guide of education, under the guise of liberalism. That, I would contend, is the essence of barbarism. That is the essency of anarchy. This is the crisis we face nowin ecucation."

IF SPEECH or writing are to be regarded as nothing but communication, then it would, indeed, be true that almost any method of expressing a thought would be satisfactory as long as the idea got across.

Winston Churchill's "We shall not flag nor fail" can be translated as "Us cats ain't buggin'." In both cases, the thought is plain enough. But the difference between Churchill and jive talk is the same as the difference between a high-fashion gown and a gunnysack dress. If the latter is to be regarded as equal to the former, there is no point in the refinement of textiles, color or design.

If colleges are to throw out disciplines of taste and techniques, then college courses could be a lot shorter. Sloppy writing, painting, composing and speaking shouldn't take long to teach.

THERE are wider implications in the New Permissiveness.

In recent years our colleges have made fetishes of "tolerance" and "understanding."

These are words that require qualification. Tolerance of another religion or tolerance of a sincerely advanced opposing point of view are one thing. But tolerance of bank robbery, heroin or cheating is another.

In the Puritan tradition there was little effort to understand "sinners." They were simply to be preached at, ordered to the mourners' bench, or waved on to Hell. Gradually, it became apparent that much so-called sin sprang from complicated motives and drives. Psychologists and social scientists suggested that if we learned what made people misbehave, we might better approach a cure. Fair enough.

BUT from that reasonable promise we seem to have leaped to the conclusion that understanding was the end of the road. It isn't. Improvement of human behavior is the true aim of ethics, morals, religion and sociology. Understanding is only a step in this direction.

Maybe we have recently spent a little too much time understanding the violent, the crooked and the irresponsible. The theory that poverty was the chief root of evil has been taking something of a licking. The crime rates have gone right up with the per capita income. Delinquency has cut across all social classes. White collar embezzlement has kept pace with simple shoplifting.

We are reaping the fruits of anarchy, the anarchy that says that each man is a law unto himself and that there is no abstract good or abstract evil.

THE normal human baby is the perfect anarchist. It throws its food, tortures the cat, explodes in tantrums, yanks toys from its siblings. It is intolerant of frustration, understands no rules of fair play. The process of changing this healthy savage into an individual who will cooperate and live in peace with his fellows involves the art of parenthood, an art more confused in modern America than perhaps in any country, civilized or not.

Anarchy, as Professor Goldberg says, will get us nowhere. When will we learn to distinguish between that and "liberalism"?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON - For more than 50 years most Americans have come to think of England as their No. 1 ally. We have fought two world wars together, got British support in two highly unpopular minor wars - Korea and South Viet Nam - and have stuck together on most major policy.

But, though most Americans don't realize it, we will soon have no ally. For the British economy is fast going down the drain.

British production is down, its factory equipment outmoded. British labor is not too efficient. The British Maritime strike earlier this year dealt the country a cruel blow. The pound sterling is propped up only by the American dollar. Australia, Canada and New Zealand are probably closer to the United States economically than to London, while India, once a vast market for England, is now completely dependent on American farmers for food.

Last month, the British, in a desperate attempt to save their economy, appealed to France to admit them to the common market. General De Gaulle's reply was that Britain was too close to the USA, that Britain must sacrifice if it wanted to get into the common market.

This imperious advice was delivered to a nation which held out against Hitler's bombers and rockets at a time when France had supinely surrendered to the Nazi army. If it were not for Britain's sacrifice at that time, France might still be under the Nazis! De Gaulle might still be enjoying his exile in England.

BRITISH PRESTIGE DOOMED

What the sinking of England means is that English law, which we inherited, English culture from which we have borrowed liberally, English government which is the foundation of our government - all lose their one-time eminence in the world.

Some will say that the British, with their current showdown over Rhodesia, are hurting their economy even more. This is true. But the principle for which they are making the Rhodesian sacrifice is the one over which the revolutionary war was fought - self-government. This is a principle for which they deserve our support.

Therefore, with President De Gaulle using Europe to spurn the United States, I suggest that Americans use their powerful patronage of Europe to help their friends, not their critics.

I suggest that we fly BOAC to Europe, not AIR France; that we visit England's beautiful tourist spots, not the French Riviera or crowded Paris. On my last two visits to Paris, the Hotel Meurice and Hotel George V refused to honor reservations made months in advance.

British hotels are more hospitable. The British countryside is delightful; the theatres the best in the world. So use your dollars to help an old friend and ally.

RHODESIA SUPPORTERS

The Liberty Lobby, whose founder, Willis Carto, wants to deport all Negroes to Africa and who believes it was a mistake to wage war against Hitler, is promoting "friends for Rhodesia."

They have founded clubs around the country, chiefly in Southern California and Alabama, aimed at supporting Rhodesia in its economic showdown with the United Nations.

One Liberty Lobby bulletin reported that Orange County, California, friends of Rhodesia held a meeting at Knott's Berry Farm, a gathering place for the ultra right, and added 14 new members and sold $500 worth of Rhodesian bonds. Not a great triumph.

Charles McWilliams of the Alabama friends of Rhodesia wrote the Liberty Lobby, proposing that each friend of Rhodesia buy a quart of oil and mail it to Prime Minister Ian Smith, to combat the current oil embargo.

In the Los Angeles area some months ago, Actor Wendell Corey ran for Congress in the Republican primary against Rep. Alphonzo Bell partly on the ground that Bell had failed to support Rhodesian independence. Despite the popularity of actors in Southern California, Corey failed to make it.

George Brown, Britain's ebullient foreign minister, who has been teaming up with U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg in the United Nations to promote sanctions against Rhodesia, actually began teaming up with Goldberg 25 years ago. They worked together as underground agents against the Nazis.

Goldberg, a Chicago attorney for the United Steelworkers and United Auto Workers, was recruited by Chicago Attorney George Bowden to work for the OSS in establishing contacts with labor in Nazi-occupied Czechoslovakia, Belgium, the Netherlands, and even Germany. One of his close associates was George Brown of the British Transport and General Workers Union.

Together they operated a huge espionage chain all over Western Europe and, through trainmen, barge workers and sailors in German-occupied territory, were able to spot barge concentrations on the Rhine so U.S. planes could bomb them next morning.

Even before Brown became a member of the present labor cabinet, he was wooed by the Kennedy administration as a comer. To bring him to the United States, Arthur Schlesinger, the Kennedy assistant, arranged in 1963 to have Harvard invite Brown for a series of lectures, thus avoiding any affront to the British Tory Government.

After the lectures, Brown was given the red carpet treatment in Washington. He had long sessions with Secretaries Rusk and McNamara, was taken down the Potomac by Secretary of the Interior Udall. They wanted him to okay the newly proposed MLF (Multinuclear Fleet). He refused - pointed out that surface ships were out of date in the Megaton-Missile age. Later, President Johnson agreed with him.

Brown has continued to be a strong supporter of most American policies.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
HAPPINESS IS A REPEAT OF "A CHARLIE BROWN CHRISTMAS"

There's a Charlie Brown way of pitching the ever-popular high, hanging curve ball that guarantees failure.

There's a Charlie Brown Halloween trick-or-treat technique that attracts rocks instead of candy.

And then there's "A Charlie Brown Christmas" philosophy that wins awards and that is rapidly making good ol' Charlie Brown the ingenuous spokesman for those who seek the true spirit of the holiday.

The animated color cartoon special that marked the television debut of Charlie Brown and the other "Peanuts" characters from the popular Charles M. Schulz syndicated comic strip last season will be rebroadcast Sunday, Dec. 11 (7:00-7:30 p.m., EST) on the CBS Television Network.

After its premiere last December "A Charlie Brown Christmas" won a George Foster Peabody Award in the children's program category and won an Emmy as the outstanding children's feature from members of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

Written by Schulz, with a special musical score composed and performed by Vince Guaraldi, the story tells of Charlie Brown's search for the real meaning of Christmas.

Amid the sound of pre-Christmas, jingle bells, he hears some false notes - the jangle of cash registers, the cacaphony of greed and selfishness. When Charlie Brown's beagle buddy, Snoopy, enters a home-decorating contest for a monetary prize, he rebels. Surely, Charlie Brown persists, there's more to Christmas than this. Somewhere, there's a deeper meaning to it all, and he sets out to find it.

He pays a visit to Lucy Van Pelt, the self-styled child psychologist, who prescribes "involvement" in holiday activities as a panacea for Charlie Brown's worries. He becomes a director of the neighborhood Christmas pageant, but the result of this brave foray into creative drama is a typical Charlie Brown record - instant failure.

It is Linus, the little blanket-toting philosopher, who finally sets things right for Charlie, Snoopy and all the Peanuts people.

"A Charlie Brown Christmas" is a Lee-Mendelson-Bill Melendez production, in cooperation with United Feature Syndicate. Mendelson is executive producer; Melendes is director of animation.

The Peabody Award citation paid high tribute to the special holiday production. It reads, in part: "It was a little gem of a show that faithfully and sensitively introduced to television the 'Peanuts' collection of newspaper characters created by Charles M. Schulz. 'A Charlie Brown Christmas' was a delight for the whole family."

The voice of Charlie Brown is interpreted by Peter Robbins, Christopher Shea is heard as Linus and Tracy Stratford as Lucy.

There never was any doubt that Tommy Lee Thompson, Negro youth accused of the brutal and sadistic slaying of Mrs. W. R. Lewis last year, would go free.

A United States supreme court ruling strikes close to home in this trial. The supreme court made a mockery of the whole proceeding.

The question of determining the attitudes of prospective jurors about capital punishment was a sheer waste of time. So was the trial. It might as well have never been held.

Why? Because the supreme court has gone overboard in protecting individual rights at the expense of the rights of society.

It was not possible to obtain a conviction of Thompson because of the failure to use one word in advising him of his rights at the time of his arrest.

Fielding Potashnick, prosecuting attorney, says that the Negro youth was advised that anything he said might be held against him and that he had the right to obtain the services of an attorney.

Because he wasn't told that the attorney services were "free" a statement obtained from him was ruled to be inadmissable at Thompson's trial in Jackson, where a jury acquitted him after overnight deliberation.

This is no time for mob action protesting the effect of the supreme court's ruling. This would solve nothing.

The court is protected from public sentiment. A right the people do have is to elect congressmen, and senators, who are pledged to enact legislation wherever possible nullifying the numerous court excursions into the legislative field.

In the past Congress has been sympathetic with the court but there was some evidence in the recent election that people are becoming disturbed about maintaining a status quo, which nourishes criminals, riots in the street and racial excesses.

The people cannot touch the court directly but they do elect the President and the members of Congress and the court has a reputation for following the election returns.

If the people speak loudly enough the court will listen.

If the people elect the right congressmen and senators, the Congress will act.

If they elect the right President and they make their wishes known he will be careful instead of careless in making appointments to the court.

There is no cause for despair if people will meet their responsibilities as citizens while there still is time.

Tuxedoes are being dusted off again with the arrival of the holiday party season in Sikeston.

And in the process a Sikeston man discovered in his tux coat's handkerchief pocket "souvenirs" from one of last season's parties - silverware. Fortunately he was able to decipher the initials and returned the table service in time for this year's party, although he isn't sure he will be invited.

Which reminded us of a Sikeston man who was on a trip with his wife and a friend who was the hostess at a party they attended several days earlier. As they were walking along a Sikeston street, the man pulled a handkerchief from his pocket. Before he was able to use it, the friend grabbed it out of his hand.

The "handkerchief" turned out to be a napkin the hostess had been missing since the party.

"TIPPED WITH GOOD CHEER"

SOMEBODY said of his special friend, "He's tipped with good cheer." Surely such a phrase, wherever we wend, we love and revere. Eyes look their brightest, all of us know, when tipped with good cheer, shedding a radiant sparkle and flow on all who draw near.

Isn't it pleasant to clasp someone's hand, tipped with good cheer? A handshake that says, "I understand, life sometimes is drear." Dickens still lives because of his pen tipped with good cheer, bringing a tonic to thousands, far and wide, year by year.

Oh! for a tongue, when skies are dull gray, tipped with good cheer, making our troubles fly swiftly away, and slaying grim fear. May all of us know the gift of a friend tipped with good cheer, for that is the voice, wherever we wend, we love most to hear.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION

While bigwigs from elsewhere are trying to find explanations for the riots in Los Angeles, with which to cover up some of the obvious reasons, a lot of work-a-day citizens throughout the country are considering practical steps to prevent similar happenings in their own communities. One idea which is already beyond the talking stage in several communities is the organization of a volunteer citizens group to support the local police in times of emergency.

"Support" in this case means far more than buying a ticket to the Policeman's Ball or waving a cheery greeting to a passing patrolmen. The proposals call for advance volunteers screened for acceptability by duly elected or appointed law enforcement officials. In addition to having to meet reasonable standards of physical condition and demonstrate emotional stability on a par with requirements for regular officers, a volunteer would have to give of his time for training, probably supply most of his own equipment for training and for protection and identification if called upon to assist the police, and accept the same discipline as a regular law enforcement officer while serving with him.

This makes a lot of sense to us. It is evident in demands of certain leaders of the so-called "civil rights" movement, and in events during and after the Los Angeles riots, that one of the objectives of those who encourage and incite mass lawlessness of that sort is to bring about a breakdown of local law enforcement capability and compel the bringing in of State or Federal troops. Advance organization and training of a volunteer auxiliary might enable the decent, law-abiding residents to better assist the police in curbing destructiveness than they were able to do in the Watts community.

No doubt there will be considerable opposition to the idea of a volunteer police auxiliary. There are those, for example, who seem to think that the answer to this and all other problems is to bring in the "federals", despite the fact that most Federal law officers are no more anxious to take over the job of local enforcement than the local authorities are to have them do so. Then there are those ever-present tax-supported social workers bent on making society satisfactory to the hoodlums, with such things as special commissions and "civilian" review boards. Well, most policemen we've known are just as civil as any other citizens in the community, and more so than some. Instead of a bunch of watery-eyed social workers looking over their shoulders, we think our local police force deserves a body of backboned friends and neighbors ready on a moment's notice to stand shoulder to shoulder with them.

The Liberty Lobby, whose founder, Willis Carto, wants to deport all Negroes to Africa and who believes it was a mistake to wage war against Hitler, is promoting "friends for Rhodesia."

They have founded clubs around the country, chiefly in Southern California and Alabama, aimed at supporting Rhodesia in its economic showdown with the United Nations.

One Liberty Lobby bulletin reported that Orange County, California, friends of Rhodesia held a meeting at Knott's Berry Farm, a gathering place for the ultra right, and added 14 new members and sold $500 worth of Rhodesian bonds. Not a great triumph.

Charles McWilliams of the Alabama friends of Rhodesia wrote the Liberty Lobby, proposing that each friend of Rhodesia buy a quart of oil and mail it to Prime Minister Ian Smith, to combat the current oil embargo.

In the Los Angeles area some months ago, Actor Wendell Corey ran for Congress in the Republican primary against Rep. Alphonzo Bell partly on the ground that Bell had failed to support Rhodesian independence. Despite the popularity of actors in Southern California, Corey failed to make it.

George Brown, Britain's ebullient foreign minister, who has been teaming up with U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg in the United Nations to promote sanctions against Rhodesia, actually began teaming up with Goldberg 25 years ago. They worked together as underground agents against the Nazis.

Goldberg, a Chicago attorney for the United Steelworkers and United Auto Workers, was recruited by Chicago Attorney George Bowden to work for the OSS in establishing contacts with labor in Nazi-occupied Czechoslovakia, Belgium, the Netherlands, and even Germany. One of his close associates was George Brown of the British Transport and General Workers Union.

Together they operated a huge espionage chain all over Western Europe and, through trainmen, barge workers and sailors in German-occupied territory, were able to spot barge concentrations on the Rhine so U.S. planes could bomb them next morning.

Even before Brown became a member of the present labor cabinet, he was wooed by the Kennedy administration as a comer. To bring him to the United States, Arthur Schlesinger, the Kennedy assistant, arranged in 1963 to have Harvard invite Brown for a series of lectures, thus avoiding any affront to the British Tory Government.

After the lectures, Brown was given the red carpet treatment in Washington. He had long sessions with Secretaries Rusk and McNamara, was taken down the Potomac by Secretary of the Interior Udall. They wanted him to okay the newly proposed MLF (Multinuclear Fleet). He refused - pointed out that surface ships were out of date in the Megaton-Missile age. Later, President Johnson agreed with him.

Brown has continued to be a strong supporter of most American policies.

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

THE VALUE JUDGMENTS

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
"This is lousy!"

IN AN essay published this fall by Antioch College a professor of literature, M. A. Goldberg, asks whether American colleges have not betrayed their students by their reluctance to make value judgments.

"The crisis in education," says Professor Goldberg, "has been brought about by anarchy. Education teaches self-discipline, while anarchy teaches self - indulgence. Education teaches us to harness the worst elements within; anarchy to unleash everything within. Education is creative; anarchy is destructive. It is somewhat ironic that anarchy is beginning to reign supreme, in the name of education."

Coming from a school famous for raising beards and spawning demonstrations this observation is intriguing, for Antioch can hardly be described as a hotbed of conservatism.

AS A student of literature, Professor Goldberg is dismayed at dictionaries, handbooks and teachers preaching that whatever is right as far as grammar, punctuation or content are concerned. He mourns that the poetry of Shakespeare and Milton is being drowned in the gamey fulminations of Allen Ginsberg.

"Now," says Professor Goldberg, "a 'liberal' education would seemingly liberate us to do only what we like. Under the guise of education it would 'liberate' all our stupidities and all our egocentricities. Indeed, it would make our better parts prisoners of our worse --under the guide of education, under the guise of liberalism. That, I would contend, is the essence of barbarism. That is the essency of anarchy. This is the crisis we face nowin ecuation."

IF SPEECH or writing are to be regarded as nothing but communication, then it would, indeed, be true that almost any method of expressing a thought would be satisfactory as long as the idea got across.

Winston Churchill's "We shall not flag nor fail" can be translated as "Us cats ain't buggin'." In both cases, the thought is plain enough. But the difference between Churchill and jive talk is the same as the difference between a high-fashion gown and a gunnysack dress. If the latter is to be regarded as equal to the former, there is no point in the refinement of textiles, color or design.

If colleges are to throw out disciplines of taste and techniques, then college courses could be a lot shorter. Sloppy writing, painting, composing and speaking shouldn't take long to teach.

THERE are wider implications in the New Permissiveness.

In recent years our colleges have made fetishes of "tolerance" and "understanding."

These are words that require qualification. Tolerance of another religion or tolerance of a sincerely advanced opposing point of view are one thing. But tolerance of bank robbery, heroin or cheating is another.

In the Puritan tradition there was little effort to understand "sinners." They were simply to be preached at, ordered to the mourners' bench, or waved on to Hell. Gradually, it became apparent that much so-called sin sprang from complicated motives and drives. Psychologists and social scientists suggested that if we learned what made people misbehave, we might better approach a cure. Fair enough.

BUT from that reasonable promise we seem to have leaped to the conclusion that understanding was the end of the road. It isn't. Improvement of human behavior is the true aim of ethics, morals, religion and sociology. Understanding is only a step in this direction.

Maybe we have recently spent a little too much time understanding the violent, the crooked and the irresponsible. The theory that poverty was the chief root of evil has been taking something of a licking. The crime rates have gone right up with the per capita income. Delinquency has cut across all social classes. White collar embezzlement has kept pace with simple shoplifting.

We are reaping the fruits of anarchy, the anarchy that says that each man is a law unto himself and that there is no abstract good or abstract evil.

THE normal human baby is the perfect anarchist. It throws its food, tortures the cat, explodes in tantrums, yanks toys from its siblings. It is intolerant of frustration, understands no rules of fair play. The process of changing this healthy savage into an individual who will cooperate and live in peace with his fellows involves the art of parenthood, an art more confused in modern America than perhaps in any country, civilized or not.

Anarchy, as Professor Goldberg says, will get us nowhere. When will we learn to distinguish between that and "liberalism"?

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor's Own Ethical Practices "Police Committee' Unstirred by Killings and Looting Inside Unions.

Washington, D. C.: -- Across the land, one of America's key unions, operating right in the gut of the nation's $60 billion construction industry, is infested with murder, suicide, bribery, corruption, embezzlement. Also, failure to file proper reports to the Labor Dept., making false entry into union books and, in one area, looting of pension funds. I refer here to the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America.

At least one of its officials has been indicted on charges of murder and conspiracy in the slaying of two opposition officials in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Monies involved total almost a million dollars.

The cost of the U. S. Dept. of Justice has been high as investigations breed investigations. Teams of FBI agents have been and are busy poring over the union's books in at least six states.

Yet the national AFL-CIO's Ethical Practices Committee, made up of honorable men, led by the very honorable elder statesman George Harrison, does not appear one bit concerned.

In fact, the five - man committee, though constitutionally charged with guarding the huge labor federation from the "taint" of corruption, has not even met in years. It is dead benefit of fanfare or requiem.

Nor did the recent AFL-CIO Executive Council session call on it to bestir itself though a high painters official, the brawny, tough 45-year- old Ben Rasnick, then executive secretary of the Brotherhood's San Francisco Bay Area District Council No. 16, was indicted on charges of murder and conspiracy in the shotgun killings of two regional officials. Rasnick was indicted for murder on Sept. 26. The Council met on Nov. 14.

The Ethical Practices Committee chairman and its members, lacking a staff, were not even aware that another former high official, Martin Rarback, had been placed back on his New York District Council 9 payroll, though he is under indictment on charges of having taken $840,000 in bribes. The gentlemen of the Ethical Practices Committee did not know of this appointment, even after it appeared in the public prints.

Had they probed behind the few scattered news stories, the Committee members would have learned that Rarback, the suspended secretary-treasurer of District Council 9 of the Painters Brotherhood, was not only named organizing coordinator, but educational director as well.

Now he is in the process of calling meetings of local memberships to educate them in modern trade unionism--presumably on how to succeed without trying in this business. There also are collections planned for contributors who can afford to give between $500 and $2000 apiece for the defense of this proletarian educator. The poor chap has at least three high-priced lawyers.

However, the San Francisco - New York axis of the Brotherhood of Painters, spectacular though it is at either end, hardly is the full measure of what should be concerning the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee. There have been indictments, convictions and corruption in other cities for almost two decades.

Some of it has been right in the capital here where labor peace in the industry once was sold for cash. In Baltimore, one local union financial secretary-treasurer was indicted on two counts -- embezzlement and failure to file reports.

Over in Charleston, W. Va., a former financial secretary and business agent was indicted on eight counts -- some of them for alleged embezzlement and false entries in union records. Also failure to file reports.

And to pick another city, there is Omaha, where a former local president and business agent was indicted on two counts-- embezzlement and making false entries in union records.

For years now this perversion of union trust has been fought by rank and file groups who oftentimes exhibit more courage than discretion. Crusades always once with built-in casualties.

But this has not frightened off the west coast band, which now seeks to ally itself with its eastern brethren. Nor the New York Labor Committee Against Corruption. In The Painting Industry. Or the Washington (D. C.) Painters Clean Up Club.

They're determined to raise an alarm across country. They now know that a man's split blood in one part of the land is not always news in another sector -- especially during the World Series and college football season. There are so many diversions.

It is inevitable that the highly placed honorable men of labor angrily will say their movement is being put upon with unfair charges.

But men are dead. Pension funds have been looted. Union funds have been pillaged. The honorable gentlemen will have no one but themselves to blame if anyone else gets hurt and the labor movement's image tarnishes.

The movement can ill afford such tarnishing just as it launches something such as the Council of AFL-CIO Unions for Professional, Scientific and Cultural Employes. Its leader, bantam Charlie Cogan, teachers' federation president, said that he was eager to erase the "stigma" of a professional belonging to a union.

In some areas that will take considerable erasing. For in some areas that stigma is etched in blood.

A HARVARD colleague once said to Felix Frankfurter, "You take law awfully seriously." To that Frankfurter could plead guilty. "I do take law very seriously," he said, "because fragile as reason is, and limited as law is as the expression of the institutionalized medium of reason, that's all we have standing between us and the tyranny of mere will and the cruelty of unbridled, undisciplined feeling." Miss Mary Susan Seib Weds John Arthur Beis

POPLAR BLUFF - The wedding of Miss Mary Susan Seib and John Arthur Beis was solemnized Nov. 26, at 11 a.m. in the Sacred Heart Catholic church with Msgr. Joseph H. Huels officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Seib, of near Poplar Bluff. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Beis, route two, Portageville.

For the wedding, the church was decorated with gold vases of white mums, placed on either side of the altar. White satin bows marked the pews. A low basket of chrysanthemums was placed at the base of the Statute Blessed Mother by the bride.

Traditional wedding music was presented by Miss Joan Post, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie, fashioned with empire waist, high neckline encircled with seed pearls and long sleeves which came to petal points, edged with seed pearls.

A chapel train was attached to the A-line skirt, and the shoulder length veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of seed pearls. The bridal bouquet was stephanotis, white satin streamers and net surrounding a white orchid.

Miss Rose Mary Seib, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of candy pink peau de soie, and the bridesmaid, Miss Linda Beis, sister of the groom, wore a gown of iridescent shimmering blue satin.

Both dresses were floor length, featuring empire waists and A-line skirts, and each wore white lace gloves. Other accessories matched the colors of their dresses. Short veils were attached to pill box hats.

The attendants carried bouquets of pink carnations with streamers of rainbow color satin ribbons.

Charles A. Beis, Jr., served his brother as best man. Ushers were Jim LaFont, E. P. Priggel and Cleat Stanfill.

Mrs. Seib selected for her daughter's wedding a blue double knit suit with brown acessories, and Mrs. Beis, mother of the groom, wore a two-piece dress of royal blue knit. The mothers wore corsages of yellow orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in Sacred Heart school assembly hall with Mrs. Joseph Seib, Mrs. William Ties, Jr., Mrs. Rodney Shewmaker and Mrs. Paul Clark as receptionists.

Mrs. Cleat Stanfill of Caruthersville, sister of the groom, presided at the guest book.

The bride's table was centered with a blue taffeta cloth overlaid with handmade crocheted cloth. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Silver candelabra with lighted tapers and an arrangement of pink roses were on either side of the cake.

For a southern wedding trip the bride chose a pink double-knit suit. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Beis will live near Portageville. He is an employe of the New Madrid County Soil Conservation Service.

A HARVARD colleague once said to Felix Frankfurter, "You take law awfully seriously." To that Frankfurter could plead guilty. "I do take law very seriously," he said, "because fragile as reason is, and limited as law is as the expression of the institutionalized medium of reason, that's all we have standing between us and the tyranny of mere will and the cruelty of unbridled, undisciplined feeling." Miss Mary Susan Seib Weds John Arthur Beis

POPLAR BLUFF - The wedding of Miss Mary Susan Seib and John Arthur Beis was solemnized Nov. 26, at 11 a.m. in the Sacred Heart Catholic church with Msgr. Joseph H. Huels officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Seib, of near Poplar Bluff. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Beis, route two, Portageville.

For the wedding, the church was decorated with gold vases of white mums, placed on either side of the altar. White satin bows marked the pews. A low basket of chrysanthemums was placed at the base of the Statute Blessed Mother by the bride.

Traditional wedding music was presented by Miss Joan Post, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie, fashioned with empire waist, high neckline encircled with seed pearls and long sleeves which came to petal points, edged with seed pearls.

A chapel train was attached to the A-line skirt, and the shoulder length veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of seed pearls. The bridal bouquet was stephanotis, white satin streamers and net surrounding a white orchid.

Miss Rose Mary Seib, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of candy pink peau de soie, and the bridesmaid, Miss Linda Beis, sister of the groom, wore a gown of iridescent shimmering blue satin.

Both dresses were floor length, featuring empire waists and A-line skirts, and each wore white lace gloves. Other accessories matched the colors of their dresses. Short veils were attached to pill box hats.

The attendants carried bouquets of pink carnations with streamers of rainbow color satin ribbons.

Charles A. Beis, Jr., served his brother as best man. Ushers were Jim LaFont, E. P. Priggel and Cleat Stanfill.

Mrs. Seib selected for her daughter's wedding a blue double knit suit with brown acessories, and Mrs. Beis, mother of the groom, wore a two-piece dress of royal blue knit. The mothers wore corsages of yellow orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in Sacred Heart school assembly hall with Mrs. Joseph Seib, Mrs. William Ties, Jr., Mrs. Rodney Shewmaker and Mrs. Paul Clark as receptionists.

Mrs. Cleat Stanfill of Caruthersville, sister of the groom, presided at the guest book.

The bride's table was centered with a blue taffeta cloth overlaid with handmade crocheted cloth. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Silver candelabra with lighted tapers and an arrangement of pink roses were on either side of the cake.

For a southern wedding trip the bride chose a pink double-knit suit. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Beis will live near Portageville. He is an employe of the New Madrid County Soil Conservation Service.

Big Red On Last Season Trip Of 1966 Champaign

ATLANTA - The football Cardinals make their first regular-season trip to Atlanta and their last trip of the 1966 season when they face the fast-moving Falcons here Sunday.

Game time is set for 12:30 p.m. (St. Louis time).

The Big Red, after a 31-17 loss to Dallas last week, is one game off the Eastern Division pace, and title hopes need help from either the Washington Redskins or the New York Giants, the last two Cowboy foes. The Cardinals meet the Browns at home in the season finale.

Now 8-3-1, the Cardinals lead Cleveland (8-4) by only half a game, with the Eagles (7-5) right behind. The Eagles and Cleveland meet at Philadelphia on Sunday.

The surprising Falcons, now 2-10, have won twice in their last three starts, topping the Giants, 27-16, and the Vikings, 20-13.

Several goals are in sight for Cardinal players as the season nears its end. John Roland, the Big Red's Rookie-of-the-year candidate, needs 23 ball-carrying attempts in the next two games to be the busiest ball-carrier in team history. He has 170 carries and the team mark is 192, shared by John David Crow (1962) and Ollie Matson (1956).

Jim Bakken needs 14 points to take over the career team leadership by passing the mark of 389 established by Pat Harder in 1946-50. Bakken has 376 points, 88 of them this year. He also needs five field goals to snap his own one-season mark of 25, set in 1964.

The Cardinals-Cleveland game, at 3:15 p.m. on Saturday, December 17, also will include Larry Wilson Day ceremonies.

Oran Stops Central

ORAN -- Woodland won the consolation bracket championship last night in the Oran high school Invitational tournament by beating East Prairie, 79-61.

Oran won the right to meet Illmo - Scott City in the tournament finals, which will be played tonight, by beating Scott Central, 54-51.

Oran broke on top early in the first quarter, taking a 16-9 first period lead, but fell behind at the half. A Central rally scored 14 points, and a tight defense held the Eagles to only six points the second period.

As the third quarter opened the Eagles shot out front for good. The Braves got into foul trouble early in the third period and slackened their defense. Oran led 38-32 going into the final quarter.

Midway in the final period, Central's two big guns, John Lee and Gary Owens, fouled out, ending the Braves hopes as they fell short three points at the final buzzer.

Oran is the defending champ and was seeded second in the tournament, with Illmo-Scott City placed in the first seeded - slot.

Scott Central will meet Delta in the consolation bracket of the tournament tonight at 7 p.m.

In the battle for the consolation bracket championship, the Woodland Cardinals got 29 points from Mark Crader and 21 points from Jack Hahn to hand the East Prairie Eagles a defeat.

Woodland led 13-11 at the end of the first quarter but broke out front by eight points in the second period and went on to win from there.

Larry Davis netted 19 points to lead the Eagles scoring. Three other teammates followed with 12 points each, Barry Bennett, Steve Hodges, and Gary Risenhoover.

Alcindor Nets 19 points

UCLA Beats Duke, 88-54

By TED MEIER

Wow! UCLA 88, Duke 54. And Lew Alcindor, UCLA's fabulous 7 foot - 1⅜ sophomore, got only 19 points.

That tells the story of the big game in college basketball Friday night, which pitted the Bruins, top-ranked in The Associated Press poll, against the seventh-ranked Blue Devils.

In his first varsity game last Saturday Alcindor popped in 56 points against Southern California. This time he didn't take a shot for the first 7½ minutes preferring to pass off because of Duke's collapsing defense against him.

Duke took an early 9-8 lead but fell behind 40-27 at halftime. In the second half UCLA exploded to turn the game before 12,172 at Pauley Pavilion in Los Angeles into a rout.

"Alcindor is so tough he is capable of getting as many as 80 points," said Vic Bubas, the Duke coach. The former New York City high school star finished with six field goals and seven of 11 free throws.

Mike Warren's 26 points was high for the Bruins. Bob Verga topped the Blue Devils with 17.

Duke gets another chance at UCLA and Alcindor tonight, and Bubas hopes his boys will hit a hot shooting streak. The Blue Devils made only 29 per cent of their field goal attempts compared to UCLA's 47 per cent.

North Carolina's Tar Heels, eighth-ranked, rolled over Tulane 92-69 behind Larry Miller's 25 - points at Chapel Hill, N. C. Ninth - ranked Brigham Young, the only other team in the Top Ten to play, crushed Denver at Provo, Utah. 87-64 behind Gary Hills' 23 points.

Kansas State whipped Baylor 77-70 and Kansas drubbed Florida State 62-48 in the Sunflower doubleheader at Manhattan, Kan. Marquette overpowered NYU 79-63 and Navy whipped Manhattan 73-68 in a twinbill at New York's Madison Square Garden. Indiana State beat Duquesne 90-84 and Columbia downed Pitt 69-57 in the first round of the Steel Bowl at Pittsburgh.

In other major games, all home court victories, Bradley defeated Southern California 102-97, Syracuse whipped Army 86-63, Princeton routed Colgate 110-72, New Orleans Loyola edged Louisiana State 87-86 in two overtimes, Arizona humbled Texas Tech 64-49, California overcame San Francisco 59-51 and Colorado State University downed New Mexico State 63-55.

Tulsa chalked up an impressive road victory, beating Wyoming at Laramie 91-87 in overtime.

Rebels And Bulldogs Vie For Championship

By RON JAYNES

ESSEX -- In semi-final action of the Richland high school basketball tournament last night, Richland raced into the finals with a convincing 79-58 win over Bell City and Notre Dame swept past the Morehouse Tigers' 86-65.

Bell City and Morehouse will meet in the consolation game tonight at 7 p.m. followed by the championship match at 8:30 p.m. between Richland and Notre Dame.

Bell City broke on top in the first game but only for a few minutes. The Rebels came storming back, set up a 19-10 first period lead and went on to their sixth win.

Although the Rebels were outrebounded they managed to win due mostly to out - court shooting, hitting 50 per cent the first half, in which they held a 39-29 lead, and ended the game hitting 48 per cent from the field. Ernest Hoosier topped the Cubs in the rebound department pulling down 17, and hitting 31 points.

Bell City was forced into taking shots from out court, where they usually took 10-15 feet shots. The Rebels defense was superb.

The Rebels held a 57-43 third period lead and opened up a 73-51 lead with 2:20 left in the final period for their biggest lead of the night.

Ricky Fowler and Allen Kelley led the Rebs in the rebounding department with each jerking down eight rebounds.

Harold Davis paced the Richland quintet in the scoring department, pouring in 20 points, followed by teammate Kelley, who netted 18 points.

Defending champion Notre Dame advanced into the finals with a rousing win over the Morehouse Tigers, 86-65.

The Notre Dame quintet is perhaps the largest team in the tournament, with the exception of Puxico, who was eliminated in the first round, and completely dominated the rebounding over the much smaller Morehouse squad.

Both teams had their troubles early in the game. Morehouse took the opening tip and missed on a shot as did Notre Dame. The two traded missed baskets for two minutes, until with 6:07 remaining in the first period, Notre Dame's Greg Flaker netted a free throw for a 1-0 lead. The team was never threatened again as it pulled out into a 7-0 lead with 4:35 to go in the first.

Morehouse finally got on the scoreboard with 3:46 left in the first on Charley Dials' 20-foot jumper from the left corner.

Notre Dame slacked up in the second period and the Tigers reached to within three points, 11-8, of the forerunners early in the game.

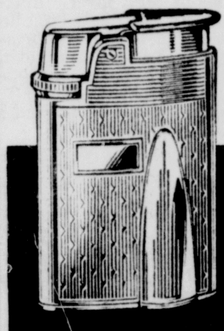

Tonight's action will be the best of the tournament with each team well matched.

In the consolation match, Bell City has the height and the rebound power but the Morehouse quintet has been known to be tough on rebounding and can shoot.

The championship match will pit the tall Notre Dame Bulldogs against the defensive minded Richland quintet. Notre Dame will find the rebounds hard to come by as the Rebels are known for their rebounding also.

Big Red On Last Season Trip Of 1966 Champaign

ATLANTA - The football Cardinals make their first regular-season trip to Atlanta and their last trip of the 1966 season when they face the fast-moving Falcons here Sunday.

Game time is set for 12:30 p.m. (St. Louis time).

The Big Red, after a 31-17 loss to Dallas last week, is one game off the Eastern Division pace, and title hopes need help from either the Washington Redskins or the New York Giants, the last two Cowboy foes. The Cardinals meet the Browns at home in the season finale.

Now 8-3-1, the Cardinals lead Cleveland (8-4) by only half a game, with the Eagles (7-5) right behind. The Eagles and Cleveland meet at Philadelphia on Sunday.

The surprising Falcons, now 2-10, have won twice in their last three starts, topping the Giants, 27-16, and the Vikings, 20-13.

Several goals are in sight for Cardinal players as the season nears its end. John Roland, the Big Red's Rookie-of-the-year candidate, needs 23 ball-carrying attempts in the next two games to be the busiest ball-carrier in team history. He has 170 carries and the team mark is 192, shared by John David Crow (1962) and Ollie Matson (1956).

Jim Bakken needs 14 points to take over the career team leadership by passing the mark of 389 established by Pat Harder in 1946-50. Bakken has 376 points, 88 of them this year. He also needs five field goals to snap his own one-season mark of 25, set in 1964.

The Cardinals-Cleveland game, at 3:15 p.m. on Saturday, December 17, also will include Larry Wilson Day ceremonies.

Oran Stops Central

ORAN -- Woodland won the consolation bracket championship last night in the Oran high school Invitational tournament by beating East Prairie, 79-61.

Oran won the right to meet Illmo - Scott City in the tournament finals, which will be played tonight, by beating Scott Central, 54-51.

Oran broke on top early in the first quarter, taking a 16-9 first period lead, but fell behind at the half. A Central rally scored 14 points, and a tight defense held the Eagles to only six points the second period.

As the third quarter opened the Eagles shot out front for good. The Braves got into foul trouble early in the third period and slackened their defense. Oran led 38-32 going into the final quarter.

Midway in the final period, Central's two big guns, John Lee and Gary Owens, fouled out, ending the Braves hopes as they fell short three points at the final buzzer.

Oran is the defending champ and was seeded second in the tournament, with Illmo-Scott City placed in the first seeded slot.

Scott Central will meet Delta in the consolation bracket of the tournament tonight at 7 p.m.

In the battle for the consolation bracket championship, the Woodland Cardinals got 29 points from Mark Crader and 21 points from Jack Hahn to hand the East Prairie Eagles a defeat.

Woodland led 13-11 at the end of the first quarter but broke out front by eight points in the second period and went on to win from there.

Larry Davis netted 19 points to lead the Eagles scoring. Three other teammates followed with 12 points each, Barry Bennett, Steve Hodges, and Gary Risenhoover.

Defending champion Notre Dame advanced into the finals with a rousing win over the Morehouse Tigers, 86-65.

The Notre Dame quintet is perhaps the largest team in the tournament, with the exception of Puxico, who was eliminated in the first round, and completely dominated the rebounding over the much smaller Morehouse squad.

Both teams had their troubles early in the game. Morehouse took the opening tip and missed on a shot as did Notre Dame. The two traded missed baskets for two minutes, until with 6:07 remaining in the first period, Notre Dame's Greg Flaker netted a free throw for a 1-0 lead. The team was never threatened again as it pulled out into a 7-0 lead with 4:35 to go in the first.

Morehouse finally got on the scoreboard with 3:46 left in the first on Charley Dials' 20-foot jumper from the left corner.

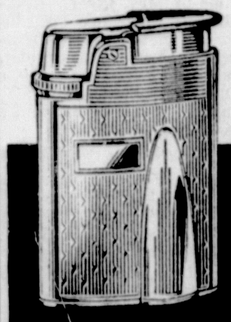

Notre Dame slacked up in the second period and the Tigers reached to within three points, 11-8, of the forerunners early in the game.

Tonight's action will be the best of the tournament with each team well matched.

In the consolation match, Bell City has the height and the rebound power but the Morehouse quintet has been known to be tough on rebounding and can shoot.

The championship match will pit the tall Notre Dame Bulldogs against the defensive minded Richland quintet. Notre Dame will find the rebounds hard to come by as the Rebels are known for their rebounding also.

BLOOMFIELD -- Dare is a new variety of soybeans that has attracted considerable attention in this area this season. We have had a number of questions from farmers concerning this variety recently.

Dare is a high-yielding variety of soybeans which is a selection from a cross between the Hill variety and an experimental variety. It matures about ten days later than Hill and some four to five days earlier than Hoods and Ogdens. It has out-produced virtually every variety with which it has been compared in variety tests in this area. For example, in experimental variety tests conducted on a sandy loam soil at Portageville, Dare produced 54.4 bushels per acre compared to 51.8 bu. produced by Hoods, 50.3 bushels produced by Lee, 49.7 bushels produced by Hills, and 46.8 bushels produced by Ogdens. In variety tests on gumbo soils at Portageville in 1965, Dare produced 39.7 bushels per acre compared to 36.3 bushels produced by Lee, 34.2 bushels produced by Hills, 26.4 bushels produced by Hoods, and 26.3 bushels produced by Ogdens.

Dare has considerable disease resistance as is indicated by the fact that it is resistant to purple seed stain, seed mottling, wildfire, target spot, and is moderately resistant to Phytophthora root rot. Dare is not resistant to the soybean cyst nematode as some reports may indicate. The only soybean cyst nematode resistant variety that has been released to date is the Pickett variety. Some people have apparently developed the idea that Dare is resistant to the cyst nematode because it is receiving considerable publicity at the same time that applications are being taken for Pickett seed. If farmers plant the Dare variety on cyst nematode infested soil, I am afraid they will be disappointed.

Although I have not painted as pretty a picture regarding the Dare variety as have some of the reports that have been circulated over the area, this certainly was not intended to take anything away from Dare. It is a good variety which has virtually out-produced every variety with which it has been compared, and it shows real promise of being an excellent variety for this area.

We have had a number of requests from farmers for information as to where seed of the Dare variety could be obtained. Several registered seedgrowers in Southeast Missouri including two or three in Stoddard County produced this variety this year. Consequently, a limited supply of seed will be available for next year's crop. Information pertaining to sources of seed of this variety may be obtained from your County University Extension Center.

INCREASED USE OF lime and fertilizer necessary to help meet U.S. food needs by 1980 is the story on placard held by John Falloon, left, University of Missouri extension soils specialist, and Winston Ewing, Knox County extension director. Falloon says that by 1980, to meet Missouri's part of U.S. food needs, corn in this state must yield 99 bushels per acre--other crops accordingly. Pastures must produce double their present capacity. To meet these production figures, Missouri farmers must use three times as much lime and fertilizer as they are currently applying to all land.

Cottonseed Quality

MEMPHIS -- Quality of cottonseed received at oil mills in Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Missouri was about unchanged when compared with a week earlier, but Arkansas seed averaged slightly lower, according to the cotton division, consumer and marketing service, United States Division of Agriculture. Prices paid for cottonseed were about unchanged in all locations except Tennessee which were slightly higher. Volume of seed received was down considerably from a week earlier in most locations reflecting advanced stages of harvest. A number of loads of seed were discounted on account of excessive foreign matter in most states.

Cottonseed grades reported by districts for the week ended December 7 varied from 100.0 to 105.0 in Arkansas, 96 to 101 in Louisiana, 97.5 to 103.5 in Mississippi and 100.5 to 102.5 in Tennessee. Missouri county averages varied from 96.5 to 101. Moisture percentages in seed in the South Central Area ranged from approximately 10 to 12. Oil content of seed varied mostly from 16 to 19 per cent. Percentage of ammonia in seed was 3.4 to 4.1. A number of loads of seed were discounted on account of excessive foreign matter in Arkansas, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee. A few loads of seed were also discounted for free, fatty acids in Louisiana.

Farmers sold cottonseed mostly from $60 to $65 per ton in Missouri, $60 to $75 per ton in Arkansas, $60 to $70 per ton in Tennessee and $65 to $75 per ton in Louisiana and Mississippi. Oil mill prices for basis grade (100) seed in truck lots, f.o.b. gin yards varied from $77 to $80 per ton.

Cottonseed meal containing 41 percent protein sold, sacked, over the scales, from $87.00 to $94.50 per ton. Bulk cottonseed hulls sold from $21.00 to $27.00 per ton. Crude cottonseed oil, basis Mississippi Valley points sold at 13 cents per pound on December 7. Bleachable cottonseed oil for March delivery closed on the New York Produce Exchange at 14.65 cents per pound Wednesday.

The total supply of edible fats, oils and oilseeds in the current marketing year which began October 1 is estimated at a record 17.2 billion pounds (oil equivalent of oilseeds). This is an increase of about four percent from last year's available supply of 16.5 billion pounds. A record 1966 soybean crop and the prospect of increase lard output is credited with the increase. Cottonseed oil production will be down sharply and butter supplies will be smaller. An increase in both domestic use and exports from the level of last year is anticipated, leaving carry-over stocks on Oct. 1, 1967 still at relatively low levels.

In Missouri low, high and average grades and prices paid farmers per ton for cottonseed per ton were:

Butler 97.0, 101.0, 99.5, $60.
Dunklin 94.0, 105.5, 99.5, $60-65.
Mississippi 95.5, 103, 100.5, $60-70.
New Madrid 87.5, 105.5, 99, $60-65.
Pemiscot 86.5, 105.0, 100.5, $65.
Ripley 98.5, 105.0, 100.5, $65,
Scott 94.5, 99.0, 96.5, $60 and
Stoddard 92.0, 103.0, 97.5, $60.

Of Interest To Homemakers

CHARLESTON -- The live green tree is a symbol of the beauty and joy of Christmas. It is safe if used correctly.

A fresh, moist Christmas tree will not catch afire. Apply a flame and it sputters and goes out but does not burn. This same tree, when dried out, will burst into flame from a spark.

Safety experts of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Extension Service report how quickly a tree burns. The tree tested was, cut a month ahead of time, kept outdoors in a cool, shady place for 2 weeks and indoors for 2 weeks, but it was not put in water. This tree burned to a charred skeleton in about 29 seconds.

Make your Christmas tree safe.

Buy a fresh tree.

As soon as you bring the tree home, saw 2 inches off of the butt end, so it will absorb water and stay fresh. Put the tree in water and keep it in water until you discard it. "A tree uses about one pint of water a day," says R. E. Marriott, Sr., Safety Coordinator at the University of Missouri, Columbia. Keep this in mind after the tree is up. Add water every day and it will stay fresh longer.

A dry tree is flammable even before it gets to the shattering stage. It cannot absorb enough water to make it safe. Mr. Marriott recommends spraying the tree to make it fire-resistant. Do this outside before decorating. Use a mixture of 8 ounces borax from the grocery store, 4 ounces boric acid, and 1 gallon water. Spray the entire tree, let it dry, and spray again.

After the spray dries, trimming is in order. Place the tree where you will enjoy it most, but away from fire hazards.

Remember, a dry tree burns fast, and even a good fire extinguisher close at hand may not prevent tragedy. Put your tree in water and keep it in water. Play it safe and enjoy your tree.

Soybeans Good Crop After Wheat

PORTAGEVILLE -- High yielding wheat followed by irrigated soybeans is a crops combination that can't be beat according to E. B. Nace, farm management agent at the Delta Center.

This combination can produce a gross income of over $200 per acre when wheat yields are 50 bushels and soybeans go thirty-five or more bushels. Some farmers in the Delta Area of Missouri have made as high as sixty bushels of wheat and forty-five bushels of beans on the same land, Nace reports.

Farmers get these kind of yields because they are good managers and make the right decisions at the right time. To expect this kind of return consistently, irrigation is a must in most years. Beans can be irrigated up if necessary, and in most years these late beans need one or two irrigations in to get these high yields year after year, the fertility of the soil must be kept at a high level. Good managers see that this is done.

Farmers who have large wheat allotments and stay in the government wheat program reap the highest rewards, for they get more money per bushel of wheat. In addition to market price, they receive wheat certificates which will likely bring total income to over two dollars per bushel next year.

Although most of our land planted to wheat is followed with soybeans, in most recent years it has not been a paying proposition without irrigation. Yields of less than 20 bushels of soybeans sometimes have not paid all the fixed and variable costs. With or without irrigation yields must be either over 20 bushels, or price must be around three dollars to get a profit and this is especially true for the tenant farmer paying a third rent.

Getting the land in shape for irrigation is costly, but the benefits are great. Better damages is a big factor that is sometimes overlooked in land farming operations. Being assured that there will be no shortage of moisture during a growing season reduces one of our greatest risks.

Budgeting costs and returns is the only way for one to make rational decisions about double cropping and irrigation. Ready made budgets can be secured from Extension offices and farm management agents in the Missouri Delta area. Know what your fixed and variable costs are likely to be on all crops before they are planted, do some figuring during the slack winter months.

Death Sad to Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD -- The accidental death of William Connally, 51, of Cape Girardeau, Monday brought sadness to Bloomfield residents, Mr. Connally and Mrs. Doris Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Parks were married Sept. 20, of this year. Mr. Connally was a cousin of Gov. Connally of Texas. Mrs. Connallys daughter and her husband Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lemar had arrived Monday from California, for a visit with her mother and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lemar.

Cape county coroner, Dan Kramer said that Connally and a helper Arthur Adams 18, died from inhaling gas fumes from one of the compartments of a barge that they were cleaning in preparation of doing repair work on it. Firemen were required to use gas masks and oxygen to recover the bodies of the two men. The coroner said that Adams had evidently been overcome by the fumes and when Mr. Connally went to his aid he was also overcome. An official of the Missouri Dry Dock Co., for whom the men worked said that Mr. Connally had vast experience in the type of work he was doing on the barge. The barge was owned by Sinclair Oil Co.

Besides his wife he is survived by three sons, Thomas, Bruce and Brad and two stepdaughters, Mrs. Jerry Lemar and Mrs. Ed Hanna.

Guns Stolen At Gideon

Timely Tips

TREND IN CLOTHING OUTLOOK FOR 1967:

A recent report of the 44th Annual Agricultural Outlook Conference concerning textile and clothing show a favorable outlook for 1967.

The supplies of apparels continue large and widely varied in fiber, fabric, and style. Ray materials are in good supply. Purchases are at all time high. Easy-care garments and household textiles are increasingly popular. Consumer and wholesale prices of clothing, and footwear in particular, are noticeablyhigher than a year ago.

NEW AND IMPROVED PRODUCTS

The trend continues toward easy-care garments and household textiles. By one industry estimate 1966 purchases of durable - Press garments will double that of 1965, and it is predicted that this will double again by 1970. While most of this fabric is 50 - 65 percent polyester and cottonblend, 9 durable press all cotton shirts for men and boys are now widely available. Men's suits made of all cotton seersucker may be available in 1967.

work is being done by one sewing machine company to provide improved methods for doing home sewing with durable press fabrics. The consumer may look for more permanent labels to be sewn to garments by manufacturers. They will be describing proper care procedures. Effort is also being made to divise a labeling system. This is being done by the U.S. Textile Industry.

Homemakers can expect in '67 a large supply of apparels available to select her families' clothing. The fiber mix will probably include more noncellulosic fibers and more leather substitutes for shoes. She may also expect a slight increase in cost due to a higher consumer and military demand. Shoe prices are expected to advance in the spring, but to as much as the 1966 increase.

THIS WEST PAKISTAN FARMER was photographed using a sohaga or plank to smooth a plowed field by William Odom of Marshall, director of research for the seed division of the Missouri Farmers Association. A cotton crop is growing in the background. The picture was made at the Tarnab Institute near Peshawar in West Pakistan. The Ford Foundation and the Rockefeller Foundation sponsored Odom's trip for the purpose of evaluating the present situation in regard to the production of sorghum crops and to determine their place in the crops pattern of West Pakistan.

BLOOMFIELD -- Dare is a new variety of soybeans that has attracted considerable attention in this area this season. We have had a number of questions from farmers concerning this variety recently.

Dare is a high-yielding variety of soybeans which is a selection from a cross between the Hill variety and an experimental variety. It matures about ten days later than Hill and some four to five days earlier than Hoods and Ogdens. It has out-produced virtually every variety with which it has been compared in variety tests in this area. For example, in experimental variety tests conducted on a sandy loam soil at Portageville, Dare produced 54.4 bushels per acre compared to 51.8 bu. produced by Hoods, 50.3 bushels produced by Lee, 49.7 bushels produced by Hills, and 46.8 bushels produced by Ogdens. In variety tests on gumbo soils at Portageville in 1965, Dare produced 39.7 bushels per acre compared to 36.3 bushels produced by Lee, 34.2 bushels produced by Hills, 26.4 bushels produced by Hoods, and 26.3 bushels produced by Ogdens.

Dare has considerable disease resistance as is indicated by the fact that it is resistant to purple seed stain, seed mottling, wildfire, target spot, and is moderately resistant to Phytophthora root rot. Dare is not resistant to the soybean cyst nematode as some reports may indicate. The only soybean cyst nematode resistant variety that has been released to date is the Pickett variety. Some people have apparently developed the idea that Dare is resistant to the cyst nematode because it is receiving considerable publicity at the same time that applications are being taken for Pickett seed. If farmers plant the Dare variety on cyst nematode infested soil, I am afraid they will be disappointed.

Although I have not painted as pretty a picture regarding the Dare variety as have some of the reports that have been circulated over the area, this certainly was not intended to take anything away from Dare. It is a good variety which has virtually out-produced every variety with which it has been compared, and it shows real promise of being an excellent variety for this area.

We have had a number of requests from farmers for information as to where seed of the Dare variety could be obtained. Several registered seedgrowers in Southeast Missouri including two or three in Stoddard County produced this variety this year. Consequently, a limited supply of seed will be available for next year's crop. Information pertaining to sources of seed of this variety may be obtained from your County University Extension Center.

INCREASED USE OF lime and fertilizer necessary to help meet U.S. food needs by 1980 is the story on placard held by John Falloon, left, University of Missouri extension soils specialist, and Winston Ewing, Knox County extension director. Falloon says that by 1980, to meet Missouri's part of U.S. food needs, corn in this state must yield 99 bushels per acre--other crops accordingly. Pastures must produce double their present capacity. To meet these production figures, Missouri farmers must use three times as much lime and fertilizer as they are currently applying to all land.

Cottonseed Quality

MEMPHIS -- Quality of cottonseed received at oil mills in Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Missouri was about unchanged when compared with a week earlier, but Arkansas seed averaged slightly lower, according to the cotton division, consumer and marketing service, United States Division of Agriculture. Prices paid for cottonseed were about unchanged in all locations except Tennessee which were slightly higher. Volume of seed received was down considerably from a week earlier in most locations reflecting advanced stages of harvest. A number of loads of seed were discounted on account of excessive foreign matter in most states.

Cottonseed grades reported by districts for the week ended December 7 varied from 100.0 to 105.0 in Arkansas, 96 to 101 in Louisiana, 97.5 to 103.5 in Mississippi and 100.5 to 102.5 in Tennessee. Missouri county averages varied from 96.5 to 101. Moisture percentages in seed in the South Central Area ranged from approximately 10 to 12. Oil content of seed varied mostly from 16 to 19 per cent. Percentage of ammonia in seed was 3.4 to 4.1. A number of loads of seed were discounted on account of excessive foreign matter in Arkansas, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee. A few loads of seed were also discounted for free, fatty acids in Louisiana.

Farmers sold cottonseed mostly from $60 to $65 per ton in Missouri, $60 to $75 per ton in Arkansas, $60 to $70 per ton in Tennessee and $65 to $75 per ton in Louisiana and Mississippi. Oil mill prices for basis grade (100) seed in truck lots, f.o.b. gin yards varied from $77 to $80 per ton.

Cottonseed meal containing 41 percent protein sold, sacked, over the scales, from $87.00 to $94.50 per ton. Bulk cottonseed hulls sold from $21.00 to $27.00 per ton. Crude cottonseed oil, basis Mississippi Valley points sold at 13 cents per pound on December 7. Bleachable cottonseed oil for March delivery closed on the New York Produce Exchange at 14.65 cents per pound Wednesday.

The total supply of edible fats, oils and oilseeds in the current marketing year which began October 1 is estimated at a record 17.2 billion pounds (oil equivalent of oilseeds). This is an increase of about four percent from last year's available supply of 16.5 billion pounds. A record 1966 soybean crop and the prospect of increase lard output is credited with the increase. Cottonseed oil production will be down sharply and butter supplies will be smaller. An increase in both domestic use and exports from the level of last year is anticipated, leaving carry-over stocks on Oct. 1, 1967 still at relatively low levels.

In Missouri low, high and average grades and prices paid farmers per ton for cottonseed per ton were:

Butler 97.0, 101.0, 99.5, $60.
Dunklin 94.0, 105.5, 99.5, $60-65.
Mississippi 95.5, 103, 100.5, $60-70.
New Madrid 87.5, 105.5, 99, $60-65.
Pemiscot 86.5, 105.0, 100.5, $65.
Ripley 98.5, 105.0, 100.5, $65,
Scott 94.5, 99.0, 96.5, $60 and
Stoddard 92.0, 103.0, 97.5, $60.

Of Interest To Homemakers

CHARLESTON -- The live green tree is a symbol of the beauty and joy of Christmas. It is safe if used correctly.

A fresh, moist Christmas tree will not catch afire. Apply a flame and it sputters and goes out but does not burn. This same tree, when dried out, will burst into flame from a spark.

Safety experts of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Extension Service report how quickly a tree burns. The tree tested was, cut a month ahead of time, kept outdoors in a cool, shady place for 2 weeks and indoors for 2 weeks, but it was not put in water. This tree burned to a charred skeleton in about 29 seconds.

Make your Christmas tree safe.

Buy a fresh tree.

As soon as you bring the tree home, saw 2 inches off of the butt end, so it will absorb water and stay fresh. Put the tree in water and keep it in water until you discard it. "A tree uses about one pint of water a day," says R. E. Marriott, Sr., Safety Coordinator at the University of Missouri, Columbia. Keep this in mind after the tree is up. Add water every day and it will stay fresh longer.

A dry tree is flammable even before it gets to the shattering stage. It cannot absorb enough water to make it safe. Mr. Marriott recommends spraying the tree to make it fire-resistant. Do this outside before decorating. Use a mixture of 8 ounces borax from the grocery store, 4 ounces boric acid, and 1 gallon water. Spray the entire tree, let it dry, and spray again.

After the spray dries, trimming is in order. Place the tree where you will enjoy it most, but away from fire hazards.

Remember, a dry tree burns fast, and even a good fire extinguisher close at hand may not prevent tragedy. Put your tree in water and keep it in water. Play it safe and enjoy your tree.

Soybeans Good Crop After Wheat

PORTAGEVILLE -- High yielding wheat followed by irrigated soybeans is a crops combination that can't be beat according to E. B. Nace, farm management agent at the Delta Center.

This combination can produce a gross income of over $200 per acre when wheat yields are 50 bushels and soybeans go thirty-five or more bushels. Some farmers in the Delta Area of Missouri have made as high as sixty bushels of wheat and forty-five bushels of beans on the same land, Nace reports.

Farmers get these kind of yields because they are good managers and make the right decisions at the right time. To expect this kind of return consistently, irrigation is a must in most years. Beans can be irrigated up if necessary, and in most years these late beans need one or two irrigations in to get these high yields year after year, the fertility of the soil must be kept at a high level. Good managers see that this is done.

Farmers who have large wheat allotments and stay in the government wheat program reap the highest rewards, for they get more money per bushel of wheat. In addition to market price, they receive wheat certificates which will likely bring total income to over two dollars per bushel next year.

Although most of our land planted to wheat is followed with soybeans, in most recent years it has not been a paying proposition without irrigation. Yields of less than 20 bushels of soybeans sometimes have not paid all the fixed and variable costs. With or without irrigation yields must be either over 20 bushels, or price must be around three dollars to get a profit and this is especially true for the tenant farmer paying a third rent.

Getting the land in shape for irrigation is costly, but the benefits are great. Better damages is a big factor that is sometimes overlooked in land farming operations. Being assured that there will be no shortage of moisture during a growing season reduces one of our greatest risks.

Budgeting costs and returns is the only way for one to make rational decisions about double cropping and irrigation. Ready made budgets can be secured from Extension offices and farm management agents in the Missouri Delta area. Know what your fixed and variable costs are likely to be on all crops before they are planted, do some figuring during the slack winter months.

Death Sad to Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD -- The accidental death of William Connally, 51, of Cape Girardeau, Monday brought sadness to Bloomfield residents, Mr. Connally and Mrs. Doris Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Parks were married Sept. 20, of this year. Mr. Connally was a cousin of Gov. Connally of Texas. Mrs. Connallys daughter and her husband Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lemar had arrived Monday from California, for a visit with her mother and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lemar.

Cape county coroner, Dan Kramer said that Connally and a helper Arthur Adams 18, died from inhaling gas fumes from one of the compartments of a barge that they were cleaning in preparation of doing repair work on it. Firemen were required to use gas masks and oxygen to recover the bodies of the two men. The coroner said that Adams had evidently been overcome by the fumes and when Mr. Connally went to his aid he was also overcome. An official of the Missouri Dry Dock Co., for whom the men worked said that Mr. Connally had vast experience in the type of work he was doing on the barge. The barge was owned by Sinclair Oil Co.

Besides his wife he is survived by three sons, Thomas, Bruce and Brad and two stepdaughters, Mrs. Jerry Lemar and Mrs. Ed Hanna.

Timely Tips

TREND IN CLOTHING OUTLOOK FOR 1967:

A recent report of the 44th Annual Agricultural Outlook Conference concerning textile and clothing show a favorable outlook for 1967.

The supplies of apparels continue large and widely varied in fiber, fabric, and style. Ray materials are in good supply. Purchases are at all time high. Easy-care garments and household textiles are increasingly popular. Consumer and wholesale prices of clothing, and footwear in particular, are noticeablyhigher than a year ago.

NEW AND IMPROVED PRODUCTS

The trend continues toward easy-care garments and household textiles. By one industry estimate 1966 purchases of durable - Press garments will double that of 1965, and it is predicted that this will double again by 1970. While most of this fabric is 50 - 65 percent polyester and cottonblend, 9 durable press all cotton shirts for men and boys are now widely available. Men's suits made of all cotton seersucker may be available in 1967.

work is being done by one sewing machine company to provide improved methods for doing home sewing with durable press fabrics. The consumer may look for more permanent labels to be sewn to garments by manufacturers. They will be describing proper care procedures. Effort is also being made to divise a labeling system. This is being done by the U.S. Textile Industry.

Homemakers can expect in '67 a large supply of apparels available to select her families' clothing. The fiber mix will probably include more noncellulosic fibers and more leather substitutes for shoes. She may also expect a slight increase in cost due to a higher consumer and military demand. Shoe prices are expected to advance in the spring, but to as much as the 1966 increase.

They were arrested Saturday morning near Vanduser, and appeared in magistrate court Thursday morning where they waived preliminary hearing and were bound over to circuit court.

Yule Lighting Discount Okayed

NEW MADRID -- a 10 per cent discount on residential lighting for the Christmas and New Years holidays was authorized by the board of aldermen for Municipal Light & Power in the December meeting of the board Monday night.

There was little other than routine business attended to at the monthly session, according to Mrs. Pauline K. Allen, city clerk.

The holiday lighting discount will apply to electricity used in residences of the city during the period from about December 20 to about January 20-- that being the regular meter-reading period--and the saving will be reflected in the February statement.

The move was made in order that more residences will use electrical lighting in their holiday decorations without additional expense for electric service.

At the meeting Monday Mrs. Alice Grossman and Mrs. Beulah Huddleston appeared to determine the proper method for getting sidewalks in front of their new homes on Mott Street and were advised that sidewalks are a private rather than a public responsibility.

The board authorized the purchase of some additional hose by the fire department when the request was made, and rate of pay of volunteer firemen was increased.

At the request of County Sanitarian Howard Phillips the board authorized purchase of chemical poison for extermination of rats in some infested areas in the city, Phillips to take care of the project.

The possibility of moving a historic old log house more than 150 years old from west of New Madrid into the Hunter-Dawson park area was discussed and Atty. Charles Hatley was authorized to make arrangements for that.

Students May Get Social Security Cash

A representative from the Cape Girardeau social security office will be at the courtroom, police dept., bldg. 140 North Prairie, Monday, at 10 a.m.

Students between 18 and 22, and the sons or daughters of a working parent, who is retired or disabled, or a deceased parent, may be eligible for monthly benefit checks from social security.

Clifford Forsee, social security district manager in Cape Girardeau, explained that the 1965 amendments to the social security act provided for student benefits in order to encourage and aid young people in continuing their education. To qualify, the student must be in full time attendance at an accredited high school, vocational school, college, junior college, or university.

Anyone now receiving social security benefits who is under 18, will have his or her monthly benefits continue until he is 22, if he remains in school. All he needs to do is advise the social security administration of their school attendance beyond age 18. Young people who had their social security benefits stopped when they became 18, should apply again if they are full-time students under 22.

Low Volume, Pork Climb Aid Hog Market

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., Dec. 10 - A late rally in the hog market featured the week's live stock trade, according to Producers Live Stock Marketing Association. Cattle and lambs showed mixed results and calves held unchanged. Salable cattle, calves, hogs and sheep of slightly more than 48,000 head were down from week ago and year ago arrivals of 56,211 and 60,682 head, respectively.

Bullish factors in the hog market were smaller 12-market receipts and higher prices for fresh pork at wholesale centers. Barrows and gilts pushed up 50 cents to $1 to a closing top of $21.75 cwt., compared with peaks of $21 a week ago and $29 a year ago. Most strength was on weights 240 lbs. down. Sows and extreme weight hogs failed to share in the rise. Butchers 270 to 300 lbs. closed steady to 50 cents lower, with sows off 25 to 50 cents at a late top of $16.50.

In the cattle market slaughter steers were steady to mostly 25¢ lower, with the best demand for average Good and low Choice kinds under 1,000 lbs. Heifers sold steady to 25¢ reduced, instances off 50¢. Cows dropped 50¢ to $1.00 and bulls remained unchanged.

A few loads of high Choice and Prime 1100 to 1200 lb. steers cashed at $24.75 to $25.00, with $25.50 paid late for a package of 900 lbs. Choice 850 to 1505 lb. steers realized $24.50 to $25.00, a few $25.25. Weights 1050 to 1150 lbs. $24.00 to $24.75; 1150 to 1250 lbs. $23.75 to $24.50.

Good steers 850 to 1000 lbs. $23.50 to $24.50, a few $24.75; 1000 to 1200 lbs. $23.00 to $24.25. Choice heifers 750 to 950 lbs. $23.25 to $24. Good 750 to 950 lbs. $22 to $23.25; Standard $20 to $22. Utility and Commercial cows $15 to $16.50; Utility, Commercial and Good bulls $20.00 to $21.00.

Steady terms applied to feeder cattle. In Thursday's auction choice 350 to 600 lb. steers realized $25.10 to $27.10; choice 300 to 585 lb. heifers $22.00 to $23.90. Veal calves held steady, choice $28 to $33, a few $35. Slaughter lambs figured steady to 25¢ higher on weights under 105 lbs., top $23.75, and steady to 50¢ or more lower on weights over 105 lbs.

Sow Slain 3 Charged

DEXTER -- Two Sikeston men, Melvin Cureton and John Ladd and Benny Gaskins of Bell City were arrested last Saturday morning near Vanduser after the three allegedly shot and killed a 500-pound sow at the Joe Watts farm northwest of Bloomfield.

Sheriff Ralph Temples charged that the three men shot the sow about 10 p.m. Friday, loaded it in a car and fled the scene.

They were arrested Saturday morning near Vanduser, and appeared in magistrate court Thursday morning where they waived preliminary hearing and were bound over to circuit court.

The three men are in the Stoddard County jail, Prosecuting Attorney Paul McGhee said. Bond has been fixed at $2,000 each, which had not been posted at noon Thursday, it was learned.

$2,000 Award In Jury Trial

NEW MADRID -- In a jury-heard civil suit in the New Madrid county circuit court Wednesday, Ruby Overton was awarded $2,000 damages against Robert Lynn McGinnis as a result of an automobile accident Sept. 6, 1964, according to Circuit Clerk Van H. Sharp.

The clerk said that civil suits were on the September term docket for jury trials Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and that Tuesday, will be a "law day."

Yule Lighting Discount Okayed

NEW MADRID -- a 10 per cent discount on residential lighting for the Christmas and New Years holidays was authorized by the board of aldermen for Municipal Light & Power in the December meeting of the board Monday night.

There was little other than routine business attended to at the monthly session, according to Mrs. Pauline K. Allen, city clerk.

The holiday lighting discount will apply to electricity used in residences of the city during the period from about December 20 to about January 20-- that being the regular meter-reading period--and the saving will be reflected in the February statement.

The move was made in order that more residences will use electrical lighting in their holiday decorations without additional expense for electric service.

At the meeting Monday Mrs. Alice Grossman and Mrs. Beulah Huddleston appeared to determine the proper method for getting sidewalks in front of their new homes on Mott Street and were advised that sidewalks are a private rather than a public responsibility.

The board authorized the purchase of some additional hose by the fire department when the request was made, and rate of pay of volunteer firemen was increased.

At the request of County Sanitarian Howard Phillips the board authorized purchase of chemical poison for extermination of rats in some infested areas in the city, Phillips to take care of the project.

The possibility of moving a historic old log house more than 150 years old from west of New Madrid into the Hunter-Dawson park area was discussed and Atty. Charles Hatley was authorized to make arrangements for that.

Students May Get Social Security Cash

A representative from the Cape Girardeau social security office will be at the courtroom, police dept., bldg. 140 North Prairie, Monday, at 10 a.m.

Students between 18 and 22, and the sons or daughters of a working parent, who is retired or disabled, or a deceased parent, may be eligible for monthly benefit checks from social security.

Clifford Forsee, social security district manager in Cape Girardeau, explained that the 1965 amendments to the social security act provided for student benefits in order to encourage and aid young people in continuing their education. To qualify, the student must be in full time attendance at an accredited high school, vocational school, college, junior college, or university.

Anyone now receiving social security benefits who is under 18, will have his or her monthly benefits continue until he is 22, if he remains in school. All he needs to do is advise the social security administration of their school attendance beyond age 18. Young people who had their social security benefits stopped when they became 18, should apply again if they are full-time students under 22.

Low Volume, Pork Climb Aid Hog Market

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., Dec. 10 - A late rally in the hog market featured the week's live stock trade, according to Producers Live Stock Marketing Association. Cattle and lambs showed mixed results and calves held unchanged. Salable cattle, calves, hogs and sheep of slightly more than 48,000 head were down from week ago and year ago arrivals of 56,211 and 60,682 head, respectively.

Bullish factors in the hog market were smaller 12-market receipts and higher prices for fresh pork at wholesale centers. Barrows and gilts pushed up 50 cents to $1 to a closing top of $21.75 cwt., compared with peaks of $21 a week ago and $29 a year ago. Most strength was on weights 240 lbs. down. Sows and extreme weight hogs failed to share in the rise. Butchers 270 to 300 lbs. closed steady to 50 cents lower, with sows off 25 to 50 cents at a late top of $16.50.

In the cattle market slaughter steers were steady to mostly 25¢ lower, with the best demand for average Good and low Choice kinds under 1,000 lbs. Heifers sold steady to 25¢ reduced, instances off 50¢. Cows dropped 50¢ to $1.00 and bulls remained unchanged.

A few loads of high Choice and Prime 1100 to 1200 lb. steers cashed at $24.75 to $25.00, with $25.50 paid late for a package of 900 lbs. Choice 850 to 1505 lb. steers realized $24.50 to $25.00, a few $25.25. Weights 1050 to 1150 lbs. $24.00 to $24.75; 1150 to 1250 lbs. $23.75 to $24.50.

Good steers 850 to 1000 lbs. $23.50 to $24.50, a few $24.75; 1000 to 1200 lbs. $23.00 to $24.25. Choice heifers 750 to 950 lbs. $23.25 to $24. Good 750 to 950 lbs. $22 to $23.25; Standard $20 to $22. Utility and Commercial cows $15 to $16.50; Utility, Commercial and Good bulls $20.00 to $21.00.

Steady terms applied to feeder cattle. In Thursday's auction choice 350 to 600 lb. steers realized $25.10 to $27.10; choice 300 to 585 lb. heifers $22.00 to $23.90. Veal calves held steady, choice $28 to $33, a few $35. Slaughter lambs figured steady to 25¢ higher on weights under 105 lbs., top $23.75, and steady to 50¢ or more lower on weights over 105 lbs.

PRAYER: Dear God fill my life to overflowing with Thy cleansing love. Deliver my life from evil and save me from yielding to temptations today. Help me to maintain spiritual health at all times and to share my blessings from Thee with others. In Christ's name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I am burned up over your taking the side of the teacher against the mother. What do you know about raising a family? I'll bet you've never had any children of your own. You've been too busy handing out advice.

I raised five children so I know what I am talking about. Our kids were just fine until the eggheads from the east came into our school system and began all this evaluation rot. We didn't know what a disturbed child was until the teachers started in with their psychoanalysis.

Today's so-called enlightened teachers take the side of the children against their parents. They make the kids feel unloved and misunderstood. They encourage students to tell everything that goes on in the home -- things that should never be discussed with outisders.

You keep criticizing the spelling of high school students who write to you. The reason our kids can't spell or read or write is because the teachers aren't teaching them. They are too busy practicing amateur psychiatry. Print this if you have the nerve, Ann Landers. I dare you. -- VOICE OF TRUTH

Dear Voice: Thank you for your point of view. And now let us hear what a college sophomore has to say.

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for giving teachers the credit they deserve. If it weren't for my English teacher who was also my guidance counselor, I would have ended up in a mental hospital or a suicide.

My father was a handsome, good-for-nothing loafer who lived with at least five women that I know of. Mom had six children to support and she did her best, but it was rough because she was sick in bed a lot. I was the oldest daughter and the responsibilities of the house and the kids fell on me.

I was a good student until worry began to get the best of me. I worried about Mom, about paying bills, about my brothers and sisters getting enough to eat and clothes to wear. I began to feel guilty for not quitting school and taking a job. Finally I became exhausted mentally and physically. I wrote to you and you suggested that I see my guidance counselor.

That teacher changed my whole life. She saw to it that Dad supported us and she got my mother to go to a good doctor. She gave me the strength and courage I needed to keep going and through her I gained real understanding of myself and my family. She made me see that I had to continue my education and that nothing should stand in my way.

I am in college now, a place I never dreamed I could be, and if it weren't for that saint of a teacher, I would never have made the grade. Thank God there are such people in the world. I pray for her every night. -- SAVED: ONE LOST GIRL

Dear Saved: What a beautiful letter. I'm intentionally not identifying the city you live in. I would like hundreds of teachers to feel that perhaps this letter was written by one of their students. And it well could have been.

Confidential to Never Could Spell: Spelling is the least of your problems. Get rid of that good for nothing "phinque" or you'll find yourself in serious trouble.

Is a heavy drinker an alcoholic? How can you tell? Is there a cure for alcoholism? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help." Enclose with your request, 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Santa,

We are all students of Matthews R-5 Matthews, Missouri. We are not asking for much, all we want is a little food for lunch. We wouldn't ordinarly ask for food, but our cafeteria does not feed us enough to keep us going all through the afternoon. Santa to show you how badly we need this food here is an example of the lunches we have. "Small serving of beans, one slice of cheese, small serving of spinach, one apple, and ½ pint of milk."

Thank you very much

AT LEAST ONE person was reported dead with many others injured in Chicago Dec. 7 when an elevated train derailed during the morning rush hour. One car fell to the ground while another was left dangling from the tracks.

COFFEE CORNER

by Cherie

I realize (Charles tells me enough) that I am only a dumb, stupid, helpless female and don't know or understand any of the ground (?), laws of our land, but being a member of the weaker sex I've always been led to believe that I would be protected and cared for, and so didn't need to worry my pretty head over men's matters.

I find today that I have been harboring false beliefs and even falser feelings of security. Girls, since the men and the laws are no longer interested in our welfare and safety, I think we are going to have to take matters into our own slightly stupid, (but not as stupid as others appear to be) heads.

After the frightful and utterly ridiculous miscarriage of justice that took place Friday, I think the first thing we ladies better do is march right out and select the caliber pistol, which suits our personality best; and the second thing we'd better do is rise up and make ourselves heard!

In the West when the law was incompetent they formed a group called the vigilantes. Perhaps we'd better look into this type of protection ourselves for when the laws have become so warped (doubtlessly because those who are now in the supreme courts and making them are so, for example, most men with sound minds and normal personalities don't marry girls young enough to be their granddaughters, God forbid!, that they protect the guilty and turn them loose on the innocent, then and that THEN is NOW, we'd better quite sitting on our fannies saying "what can I do," and stand on our feet together and find out!

I may be only one small voice, but you lend me yours and together we'll make one HELL of a loud noise! Citizens, I beg of you, let's do something!! I hate to think of my sons growing up in a world where if they get mad enough to harm your sons, they can do so with the full realization some lawyer will find a ridiculous loophole to pull them through. Are we going mad???

Don't we have sense enough to know that if a child does wrong and is never punished he continues to do wrong, and far worse wrongs all his life, as well as setting an example others will follow?

I am sick of hearing about Johnson's barbeques, Kennedy's tombstone, Communist students in Berkeley, and civil rights in Georgia -- I want to hear a little about right and wrong in America, and about justice enforced in this Great Society that we have allowed the greedy, graspy politicians to corrupt.

Someone once wrote in the heat of a battle as many around him were dying.

"O say does that Star Spangled Banner yet wave
O'er the land of the FREE and the home of the BRAVE."
Well, does it?

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I am burned up over your taking the side of the teacher against the mother. What do you know about raising a family? I'll bet you've never had any children of your own. You've been too busy handing out advice.

I raised five children so I know what I am talking about. Our kids were just fine until the eggheads from the east came into our school system and began all this evaluation rot. We didn't know what a disturbed child was until the teachers started in with their psychoanalysis.

Today's so-called enlightened teachers take the side of the children against their parents. They make the kids feel unloved and misunderstood. They encourage students to tell everything that goes on in the home -- things that should never be discussed with outsiders.

You keep criticizing the spelling of high school students who write to you. The reason our kids can't spell or read or write is because the teachers aren't teaching them. They are too busy practicing amateur psychiatry. Print this if you have the nerve, Ann Landers. I dare you. -- VOICE OF TRUTH

Dear Voice: Thank you for your point of view. And now let us hear what a college sophomore has to say.

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for giving teachers the credit they deserve. If it weren't for my English teacher who was also my guidance counselor, I would have ended up in a mental hospital or a suicide.

My father was a handsome, good-for-nothing loafer who lived with at least five women that I know of. Mom had six children to support and she did her best, but it was rough because she was sick in bed a lot. I was the oldest daughter and the responsibilities of the house and the kids fell on me.

I was a good student until worry began to get the best of me. I worried about Mom, about paying bills, about my brothers and sisters getting enough to eat and clothes to wear. I began to feel guilty for not quitting school and taking a job. Finally I became exhausted mentally and physically. I wrote to you and you suggested that I see my guidance counselor.

That teacher changed my whole life. She saw to it that Dad supported us and she got my mother to go to a good doctor. She gave me the strength and courage I needed to keep going and through her I gained real understanding of myself and my family. She made me see that I had to continue my education and that nothing should stand in my way.

I am in college now, a place I never dreamed I could be, and if it weren't for that saint of a teacher, I would never have made the grade. Thank God there are such people in the world. I pray for her every night. -- SAVED: ONE LOST GIRL

Dear Saved: What a beautiful letter. I'm intentionally not identifying the city you live in. I would like hundreds of teachers to feel that perhaps this letter was written by one of their students. And it well could have been.

Confidential to Never Could Spell: Spelling is the least of your problems. Get rid of that good for nothing "phinque" or you'll find yourself in serious trouble.

Is a heavy drinker an alcoholic? How can you tell? Is there a cure for alcoholism? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help." Enclose with your request, 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Dec. 10, the 344th day of 1966. There are 21 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1898, a peace treaty was signed to end the Spanish-American War and give the United States sovereignty over Puerto Rico, the Philippines and Guam.

On this date:

In 1817, Mississippi was admitted to the Union.

In 1941, Japanese torpedo planes sank the British cruiser Repulse and the battleship Prince of Wales off the coast of Malaya.

In 1944, Britain announced the formation of a new Pacific fleet commended by Adm. Sir Bruce Fraser.

In 1945, the diary kept by Benito Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Ciano, was introduced as evidence at the Nuernberg trials.

Ten years ago—After a series of antigovernment demonstrations and street clashes, the Budapest Central Workers Council put into effect a general strike in protest against repression by the Soviet-backed regime of Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar.

Five years ago—The rift between the Soviet Union and Communist Albania — Peking's staunchest ally in Eastern Europe—grew wider when the Albanian news agency reported the Soviet Union had recalled its diplomatic mission in Albania and ordered Albania's Moscow embassy closed.

One year ago — Three white men were acquitted by an all-white jury at Selma, Ala., in the slaying of the Rev. James Reeb, a Boston minister who was working in the civil rights movement.

March of 1965, he spent four months at the state hospital at Fulton undergoing evaluation. He was declared mentally competent to stand trial.

The defense then requested and received permission for a private mental examination, which delayed the trial another two months.

The defense was granted a change of venue from Scott to Cape Girardeau county, where the trial date was set for August. However, when it was learned that the date coincided with the Jackson Homecoming, Judge Statler reset the date for Dec. 5.

The state's case against Thompson, greatly weakened by the dismissal of the confession as admissable evidence, failed to prove that Thompson was the person who fired the fatal shot at Mrs. Lewis.

In his closing argument Thursday, Dwight Crader, one of three lawyers for the defense, told the jury that the only fact proved by the state in the trial was that Mrs. Lewis was killed by a person of undetermined identity.

ment of the Dallas city jail the morning of Nov. 24, 1963, two days after President John F. Kennedy was slain by a rifleman.

Ever since the Oswald shooting, Ruby has remained in the Dallas County jail, the ward of Sheriff Decker.

At a news conference Friday night, Decker said two guards would stay with the sick man around the clock.

"Jack Ruby is under my care, and I want him to have medical attention if he needs it," said Decker. "I am satisfied with what Parkland is doing for him."

The sheriff said Ruby had been "eating good."

Ruby had not previously been reported physically ill during his long stay in the jail.

After he received the death sentence for killing Oswald, some of Ruby's lawyers said he had tried to kill himself. Once he butted the wall with his head, they said, and again he stuck his fingers in a light socket.

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade, who directed the prosecution at Ruby's trial, said the defense claims were merely a play for sympathy.

There has been conjecture that Ruby, when he gets a new trial, could be convicted of murder without malice, which carries a maximum five-year sentence.

Defense lawyers have said that if this occurs, Ruby, with credit for his time spent in the Dallas County Jail would go free.

ing center 34 miles southeast of Saigon and took a heavy toll before withdrawing official spokesmen reported.

While the Communists centered on the capital area with this and smaller attacks, 1,700 guerrilla-trained American infantrymen arrived in South Viet Nam in the continuing buildup of U.S. forces and a squadron of F100 Supersabres was added to American air strenth here.

The new arrivals brought to 363,700 the number of American servicemen in South Viet Nam. More are expected in the next few days.

On the political front, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk continued his Saigon visit by conferring with top Vietnamese and American fliers. Later he told newsmen "we've seen no indication yet" that the Communists would be interested in extending the 48-hour Christmas truce.

"We just haven't heard from them," Rusk said after meeting with Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu.

The first contingent of the U.S. 199th Light Infantry Brigade debarked at Vung Tau, 40 miles south of Saigon. The rest of the 4,000-man brigade was due within a few days. Also scheduled to arrive soon is another full U.S. infantry division.

Repeating earlier statements about a truce extension, Rusk said, "These things have to be done on a basis of what both sides are willing to do. We can't stop half the war."

Pope Paul VI earlier this week proposed extending the Christmas truce through New Year's as a gesture toward negotiations for peace.

Besides conferring with Van Thieu and Ky, Rusk also got a rundown on the battlefield situation from Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet Nam.

Rusk is scheduled to leave Sunday for Thailand en route to a NATO meeting in Paris.

Except for the guerrilla fighting around Saigon, there was no major ground action reported.

In the air, war high-flying B52 bombers staged three raids on Communist troops and bases today in South Viet Nam and American pilots flew 78 bombing missions over North Viet Nam Friday.

Three U.S. helicopters were wrecked when they detonated land mines while landing Friday in Tay Ninh Province northwest of Saigon. U.S. headquarters said two American servicemen were killed and one was wounded in two of the helicopters. The crew of the third escaped injury.

In the fighting around Saigon, Viet Cong marauders attacked a U.S. Army ammunition dump 13 miles northeast of the capital early today. The explosives they planted set fire to two ammunition pads. A U.S. spokesman said casualties and damage were light. It was the third Viet Cong attack on the Long Binh ammunition dump in less than two months.

In the larger attack Friday night on the Vietnamese training center near Baria, 34 miles southeast of Saigon, the Viet Cong force opened up with machine-gun, mortar and small arms fire on two companies — about 300 men — of regional force troops.

The militiamen had assembled in the center after a field training exercise, a Vietnamese spokesman said. After several hours, the Viet Cong withdrew and a reaction force of South Vietnamese infantrymen was sent in pursuit, spokesmen said.

About 24 miles northwest of Saigon, another company of regional force troops was ambushed Friday and suffered moderate casualties, Vietnamese headquarters reported.

The first wave of B52 bombers struck at a Viet Cong troop concentration 32 miles northwest of Saigon, the same target that was hit 24 hours earlier.

The second raid struck at an enemy troop center on a mountainside in the central highlands 36 miles southwest of Pleiku City. The third strike of the day was against a Communist base area in the northern part of the country 36 miles south of Hue on the South China Sea coast.

In air strikes over South Viet Nam Friday, U. S. pilots flew 373 sorties and claimed destruction of more than 180 enemy huts, structures and fortifications. South Vietnamese pilots flew an additional 128 sorties.

Selling in Dexter Eyed

DEXTER -- A short business meeting was held by the City Council Monday night at City Hall.

The main item of business was further discussion of the unlicensed merchants from surrounding areas selling products in Dexter, but following the discussion the matter was tabled, Mayor Willis Conner said.

It was reported that a flashing red light, a four way stop, will be installed at the intersection of Elm and Stoddard Streets "on a trial basis" according to Mayor Conner. At the present a regular stop light is in operation. The trial basis of a four way stop, if proven satisfactory, could result in others in the downtown area, it was learned.

Mayor Conner also reappointed three members of the park board to additional two year terms. Receiving the appointments were Mrs. Frances Strickland, Francis Webb and Cecil Day, all of whom are active in the board now.

Monthly disbursements were authorized prior to adjournment.

X-ray Examinations

It has been estimated that one of every two persons in the United States will have had at least one X-ray examination or treatment before the end of 1966.

Religious Emphases in Yule Parade

DEXTER -- A Christmas parade - a "first" for Dexter - was staged here Saturday, under the auspices of the Retail Merchants association. The parade began at 4:30 p.m. at the Big Star parking lot and proceeded eastward down Stoddard Street.

The event this year was geared to the theme "Keep Christ in Christmas" approximately ten floats depicted this theme.

Christmas music was provided by the Dexter and Richland Bands and a choral group from Dexter High School, and at least one group of baton twirlers are exptected to add to the rhythmic portion of the festivities. Also appearing, were Miss Dexter, Jackie Larsen and Miss Dexter High School Beckie Larsen, twin daughters of the J. C. Larsens.

The main emphasis on the parade has been encouragement of churches to help keep the chosen theme for the year by entering floats that would reveal each church's special meaning for the season when Christians observe the birth of Jesus Christ.

Santa Claus did not appear in the parade and during the time of the parade Santa Claus Headquarters at 122 East Stoddard St. was closed. He was there following the parade to talk to the children.

No prizes were awarded to any of the floats.

Spot Cotton Prices Steady

HAYTI -- Spot cotton prices were steady. Demand continued strong, but trading was limited by the small volume of recent ginnings available. Prices averaged about 90 points above Commodity Credit Corporation loan rates for the qualities currently traded on the market.

The harvest was brought to a stand-still by rain and cloudy conditions that prevailed throughout the week.

Very little cotton remains in the fields, and farmers and ginners feel that a good week of open weather would wind the crop up for this year.

Bison were common in the Black Forest of Germany at the time of Julius Caesar.

After he received the death sentence for killing Oswald, some of Ruby's lawyers said he had tried to kill himself. Once he butted the wall with his head, they said, and again he stuck his fingers in a light socket.

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade, who directed the prosecution at Ruby's trial, said the defense claims were merely a play for sympathy.

There has been conjecture that Ruby, when he gets a new trial, could be convicted of murder without malice, which carries a maximum five-year sentence.

Defense lawyers have said that if this occurs, Ruby, with credit for his time spent in the Dallas County Jail would go free.

ing center 34 miles southeast of Saigon and took a heavy toll before withdrawing official spokesmen reported.

While the Communists centered on the capital area with this and smaller attacks, 1,700 guerrilla-trained American infantrymen arrived in South Viet Nam in the continuing buildup of U.S. forces and a squadron of F100 Supersabres was added to American air strenth here.

The new arrivals brought to 363,700 the number of American servicemen in South Viet Nam. More are expected in the next few days.

On the political front, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk continued his Saigon visit by conferring with top Vietnamese and American fliers. Later he told newsmen "we've seen no indication yet" that the Communists would be interested in extending the 48-hour Christmas truce.

"We just haven't heard from them," Rusk said after meeting with Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu.

The first contingent of the U.S. 199th Light Infantry Brigade debarked at Vung Tau, 40 miles south of Saigon. The rest of the 4,000-man brigade was due within a few days. Also scheduled to arrive soon is another full U.S. infantry division.

Repeating earlier statements about a truce extension, Rusk said, "These things have to be done on a basis of what both sides are willing to do. We can't stop half the war."

Pope Paul VI earlier this week proposed extending the Christmas truce through New Year's as a gesture toward negotiations for peace.

Besides conferring with Van Thieu and Ky, Rusk also got a rundown on the battlefield situation from Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet Nam.

Rusk is scheduled to leave Sunday for Thailand en route to a NATO meeting in Paris.

Except for the guerrilla fighting around Saigon, there was no major ground action reported.

In the air, war high-flying B52 bombers staged three raids on Communist troops and bases today in South Viet Nam and American pilots flew 78 bombing missions over North Viet Nam Friday.

Three U.S. helicopters were wrecked when they detonated land mines while landing Friday in Tay Ninh Province northwest of Saigon. U.S. headquarters said two American servicemen were killed and one was wounded in two of the helicopters. The crew of the third escaped injury.

In the fighting around Saigon, Viet Cong marauders attacked a U.S. Army ammunition dump 13 miles northeast of the capital early today. The explosives they planted set fire to two ammunition pads. A U.S. spokesman said casualties and damage were light. It was the third Viet Cong attack on the Long Binh ammunition dump in less than two months.

In the larger attack Friday night on the Vietnamese training center near Baria, 34 miles southeast of Saigon, the Viet Cong force opened up with machine-gun, mortar and small arms fire on two companies — about 300 men — of regional force troops.

The militiamen had assembled in the center after a field training exercise, a Vietnamese spokesman said. After several hours, the Viet Cong withdrew and a reaction force of South Vietnamese infantrymen was sent in pursuit, spokesmen said.

About 24 miles northwest of Saigon, another company of regional force troops was ambushed Friday and suffered moderate casualties, Vietnamese headquarters reported.

The first wave of B52 bombers struck at a Viet Cong troop concentration 32 miles northwest of Saigon, the same target that was hit 24 hours earlier.

The second raid struck at an enemy troop center on a mountainside in the central highlands 36 miles southwest of Pleiku City. The third strike of the day was against a Communist base area in the northern part of the country 36 miles south of Hue on the South China Sea coast.

In air strikes over South Viet Nam Friday, U. S. pilots flew 373 sorties and claimed destruction of more than 180 enemy huts, structures and fortifications. South Vietnamese pilots flew an additional 128 sorties.

Selling in Dexter Eyed

DEXTER -- A short business meeting was held by the City Council Monday night at City Hall.

The main item of business was further discussion of the unlicensed merchants from surrounding areas selling products in Dexter, but following the discussion the matter was tabled, Mayor Willis Conner said.

It was reported that a flashing red light, a four way stop, will be installed at the intersection of Elm and Stoddard Streets "on a trial basis" according to Mayor Conner. At the present a regular stop light is in operation. The trial basis of a four way stop, if proven satisfactory, could result in others in the downtown area, it was learned.

Mayor Conner also reappointed three members of the park board to additional two year terms. Receiving the appointments were Mrs. Frances Strickland, Francis Webb and Cecil Day, all of whom are active in the board now.

Monthly disbursements were authorized prior to adjournment.

X-ray Examinations

It has been estimated that one of every two persons in the United States will have had at least one X-ray examination or treatment before the end of 1966.

Religious Emphases in Yule Parade

DEXTER -- A Christmas parade - a "first" for Dexter - was staged here Saturday, under the auspices of the Retail Merchants association. The parade began at 4:30 p.m. at the Big Star parking lot and proceeded eastward down Stoddard Street.

The event this year was geared to the theme "Keep Christ in Christmas" approximately ten floats depicted this theme.

Christmas music was provided by the Dexter and Richland Bands and a choral group from Dexter High School, and at least one group of baton twirlers are exptected to add to the rhythmic portion of the festivities. Also appearing, were Miss Dexter, Jackie Larsen and Miss Dexter High School Beckie Larsen, twin daughters of the J. C. Larsens.

The main emphasis on the parade has been encouragement of churches to help keep the chosen theme for the year by entering floats that would reveal each church's special meaning for the season when Christians observe the birth of Jesus Christ.

Santa Claus did not appear in the parade and during the time of the parade Santa Claus Headquarters at 122 East Stoddard St. was closed. He was there following the parade to talk to the children.

No prizes were awarded to any of the floats.

Spot Cotton Prices Steady

HAYTI -- Spot cotton prices were steady. Demand continued strong, but trading was limited by the small volume of recent ginnings available. Prices averaged about 90 points above Commodity Credit Corporation loan rates for the qualities currently traded on the market.

The harvest was brought to a stand-still by rain and cloudy conditions that prevailed throughout the week.

Very little cotton remains in the fields, and farmers and ginners feel that a good week of open weather would wind the crop up for this year.

Bison were common in the Black Forest of Germany at the time of Julius Caesar.
